Victor Sifton Dies Suddenly

WINNIPEG (CP)—Victor Sifton, one of the giants of Canadian journalism and a recognized authority in the fields of defence, education and business, died suddenly Friday at the age of 64.

Mr. Sifton, editor and publisher of The Winnipeg Free Press and board chairman of the national newspaper group, FP Publications Limited, succumbed to a heart attack in his doctor's office only a short time after he had taken his usual active part in putting out the day's paper.

Funeral arrangements were expected to be announced later today after the return of Mrs. Sifton from Brockville, Ont., where just over a month ago, on March 18, Mr. Sifton had given his daughter, Carolyn Arma, in marriage to Earl Leonard Crowe of Ottawa.

Other survivors include his other daughter, Mrs. Donald Kennedy of Manotick, Ont., his son, John, 35, general manager of The Free Press, and his brother, Clifford, president of the Saskatoon Star-Phoenix and the Regina Leader-Post.

Heir to Tradition

Mr. Sifton, one of the five sons of Sir Clifford Sifton, was an heir to a Western Canadian newspaper tradition and during his life added lustre to it.

In the Second World War, as master-general of ordnance, he conducted a supply operation regarded as the biggest single piece of merchandising in Canada, and was named as Commander of the Order of the British Empire for what the late C. D. Howe, then munitions and supply minister, called "very exceptional service for Canada in a most important field."

He was also president of the Manitoba division of the Red Cross Society during the war years, and in the post-war era served from 1952 to 1959 as chancellor of the University of Manitoba after long service on its board of governors.

In his early career, after combat service in the First World War that won him the Distinguished Service Order and command of his unit at the age of 22, he was a successful businessman in the brokerage and export fields.

Police said Levy stopped to rest at the shop of his friend, tailor J. H. Sweder, when a man came to the door and asked for a pair of trousers.

They said Levy told them later that the man appeared drunk and he tried to humor him. The man suddenly struck Levy several times with a cane, wrestled him to the floor and fled with $8.

Sweder said that Levy attempted to augment his income by peddling cutlery to butchers and bakers.

"I gave him the privilege of my shop to rest and receive his mail. I gave him a key to let himself in whenever he wanted."

The attack took place at 7 p.m. Thursday.

To Contest All Seats

RENFREW, Ont. (CP)—A CCF member of Parliament from British Columbia said today the New Party will contest all 265 federal constituencies in the next general election. "We will either form the next government or, as a minimum, we will hold the balance of power," Ewart Regier told a New Party forum here.

Four Canadian Priests Arrested by Cuba

OTTAWA (CP)—Three more Canadians, including two Roman Catholic priests, were arrested in Cuba Friday, it was learned today.

The arrests follow the detention of two other Canadian priests earlier this week. All four priests are reported to be members of La Societe des Missions Etrangères de Montréal.

Names of the three persons arrested Friday were not available here.

The first two priests arrested were identified as Rev. Jean Menard and Rev. Paul-Emile Chénard. A report from Montreal Friday said they had since been freed.

LAOS REBELS

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI)—Communist-supplied rebel forces, backed by a heavy mortar barrage, attacked Laotian government troops on a key highway north of Vang Vieng today. The government commander said 18 soldiers were killed and 16 wounded.

TROUBLED FRENCH LEADER

Grim expression on face of French President de Gaulle, right, as he walks with Gen. André Demetz in gardens of Elysee Palace, reflects concern over crisis in Algeria, where military junta seized power.

'REMOTE CHANCE OF SUCCESS'

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI News Analyst

The revolt of the French generals in Algiers is an act of desperation with only the remotest chance of success.

For it is a rebellion not only against Gen. Charles de Gaulle's plan for an independent Algeria, it is also a revolt against de Gaulle himself and to succeed it must topple de Gaulle.

But for de Gaulle, it also is a forceful reminder that the success of his plan for Algeria depends upon the army.

The indications are today that the bulk of the French armed forces remain loyal to him.

LAOS CRISIS

'Conditions Exist For Peace'

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union and Laotian neutralist leader Prince Souvanna Phouma said in a joint communiqué today that "real conditions exist" at present for a peaceful settlement of the Laotian conflict.

Armed civilians set up a "Lagardière" command post in the centre of Algiers to fight if necessary against de Gaulle's intention to give Algeria the civilians had been freed from French internment camps.

Rebel Generals Seize Main City

PARIS (UPI)—Four rebel generals seized Algiers in a bloodless coup today and President Charles de Gaulle declared a state of emergency throughout France and Algeria.

De Gaulle called an emergency cabinet meeting in Paris and announced afterward the army and air force generals who seized Algiers with the help of Foreign Legionnaire paratroopers would be brought to justice.

De Gaulle vowed he would take all necessary action to crush the rebellion. This could mean civil war in Algeria.

A United Press International dispatch from Oran, Algeria, said the insurgent regime in Algiers had begun distributing arms to young right-wing recruits who oppose De Gaulle's Algerian policies.

The Oran dispatch—first to be sent from Algiers since the early morning military coup—said recruits arrived at the central police office in Algiers and were given guns from a government arsenal seized this morning.

their control was of Algeria only. De Gaulle sent top military and civilian officials to Oran to study the situation and report back.

Bombs exploded in Paris in the town hall of the Neuilly district and at suburban Courbevoie northwest of Paris. Heavy damage was reported in the first explosion. Three members of a wedding party were injured in the second.

Premier Asks 'Absolute Obedience'

The violence flared as Premier Michel Debre appealed on a nationwide radio and television hookup for "absolute obedience" to De Gaulle.

A communiqué signed by two former French commanders in Algeria—Gens. Raoul Salan and Maurice Challe—said a state of siege had been proclaimed in the African territory.

"All powers held by civilian authorities pass completely to the military," said the communiqué, which was signed also by Gens. André Zeller and Edmond Jouhaud.

The communiqué was the first indication that Salan, last reported living as a refugee in Spain, had returned to Algeria.

De Gaulle presided over an extraordinary session of the cabinet to hear a special report from "somewhere in Algeria" by Algerian Affairs Minister Louis Joxe.

De Gaulle dispatched Joxe and Gen. Jean Olie and a group of aides to Algeria this morning with "widest powers" to take over from the imprisoned military and civilian leaders there.

In Paris police trucks moved into potential trouble spots such as the Arch of Triumph area, a favorite site for extreme right-wing demonstrations. The Neuilly district is just west of the Arch.

Police raided the homes of known "French-Algeria" sympathizers. The raid was similar

UN Troops Seize Town

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI)—The United Nations announced today it had seized the northern Katanga, rail town of Nyunzu to block further advances by President Moise Tshombe's Katanganese army.

If the U.S. government considered it right to take the measures against Cuba which it had taken recently, then Kennedy must admit that other countries had no less right to take similar action in relation to countries "on whose territory preparations are made which threaten the security of the Soviet Union."

"We on our part do not hold such opinions."

The UN move underlined the tough UN attitude toward Tshombe's efforts to wipe out the Baluba tribesmen opposition in northern Katanga.

GOLDWATER ON CUBA:

'Use Force If Necessary'

MESA, Ariz. (UPI)—Sen. Barry Goldwater said today he would recommend active military intervention in Cuba if all else failed.

The Arizona Republican—who met with President Kennedy Friday in Washington for a briefing—said the United States cannot permit a Communist country to exist so close to its shores.

"As of this morning," he told a Rotary conference, "this country is in greater danger than it has ever been."

"We can overnight become a second world power. We can within a very few years come under a foreign philosophy."

"Our mistake is not being tough," he said.

On Cuba, Goldwater said he had recommended an aerial and surface blockade. If that failed, he said, the United States should turn to the Organization of American States for action and "if the OAS failed, we should take action ourselves."

The outspoken senator explained that if Cuba were Communist it would be used as a base for attack against a northern South America country. From there, Goldwater said, he thought the next move would be Mexico, and then, he said, "we would be cut off. After that would come Canada."

Invasion a 'Total Failure'

Times News Services

MIAMI, Fla.—Jose Miro Torra, son of the president of the Cuban revolutionary council, told a panel of Castro newsmen and officials today that the invasion of Cuba was a "total failure."

"No one could have reached the Escambray (Mountains)," he said on a television and radio broadcast from Havana.

Miro Torra's father, Jose Miro Cardona, had insisted in New York Friday that most of the invasion forces had reached the Escambrays, about 15 miles from the Bay of Pigs beachhead.

Miro Torra said 1,300 to 1,400 men comprised the invasion force—"all of the military forces available."

Miro was questioned along with other prisoners taken when the beachhead in south Cuba was overrun by Castro forces.

Asked how many men were in the invasion force, Miro said 1,300 to 1,400.

"We thought 'practically all' the anti-Castro soldiers in the camp at Retalhuel, Guatemala, took part in the invasion."

Miro said he saw what "I thought were two destroyers" with the invasion force.

CUBAN ROUNDUP

Keep Fighting, Rebels Urged

By the Associated Press

An anti-Castro radio broadcast from an island off Central America today told two rebel "battalions" apparently fighting on Cuban soil that help was on the way and urged them not to surrender.

In Havana, the newspaper Revolucion said today Prime Minister Fidel Castro mounted a tank turret and fired a shot that led to the sinking of one of the invaders' transports.

Castro's shot touched off munitions aboard the vessel, the paper said. It published pictures of Castro on the tank turret and one of a small transport with bow ablaze and stern sinking.

The Swan Island broadcast, monitored by the Associated Press in Miami, also repeated troops movement instructions it had sent out during the night.

It had told earlier of new small landings made in Cuba, but no other source confirmed this. Some rebel sources in Miami did say, however, that between 500 and 1,500 guerrillas were headed for Cuba for a new invasion assault.

CITY OF FEAR

A dispatch from Havana described the Cuban capital as a city of fear and suspicion. It said a new wave of arrests and detentions reached into almost every family. Suspects jammed swollen jails and living conditions were described as growing worse.

The New York Times quoted a diplomatic source in Washington as saying Maj. Ernesto

Che Guevara, one of Castro's top aides, was seriously wounded in the head earlier this week. The Times said the information reached Washington from a diplomatic source in Havana.

The diplomatic source said a neurosurgeon was sent to the hospital where Guevara allegedly was taken. Guevara, 32, is Cuba's economic czar.

The government radio network said Castro, unseen in public for almost a week was personally directing mop-up operations in the interior against surviving rebel invaders trying to overthrow his pro-Communist regime.

UN ALTERS RESOLUTION ON CUBA

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—The UN General Assembly early today adopted a mildly worded resolution calling on all countries to take whatever peaceful steps they can to remove the existing tension between the United States and Cuba.

The proposal was adopted 59 to 13 after the assembly reversed its main political committee and killed a provision assigning the role of peacemaker to Latin-American nations. The United States had backed the defeated provision.

2nd B.C. Man Seeks Top Sacred Post

EDMONTON (CP)—A. B. Patterson of Abbotsford, B.C., is to let his name stand as a candidate for the vacant post of national leader of the Social Credit party, it was announced Friday by Education Minister Anders O. Aalberg, chairman of the nominations committee.

M. Patterson, national organizer of the Social Credit Association of Canada, is the fourth person to declare his intention. The others are Robert N. Thompson of Red Deer, association president; George Hahn of New Westminster, a candidate in the Esquimalt-Saanich by-election, and Real Caouette of Rouyn, Que.

Mr. Patterson was Social Credit member of Parliament for Fraser Valley from 1953 to 1958.

A successor to retired national leader Solon E. Low will be picked at Ottawa in July.

REVELSTOKE—George Caldough planned to quit the investment business and take up treasure hunting off the Bahamas in the late Errol Flynn's luxury yacht, according to letters claimed to have been written by the self-styled boy tycoon.

The letters were read in court Friday by prosecutor George Murray during the preliminary hearing of fraud conspiracy charges against Caldough and two other men.

In one of the letters, written to friends in Toronto in 1959, Caldough said his stock business was becoming too much for him.

INGLEDOW NAMED

VANCOUVER—Dr. Thomas Ingledow, president of international power and engineering consultants, was appointed chairman Friday of a committee to study possibilities of building a $6,000,000 new coliseum in the downtown area.

Announcing the appointment, Mayor Tom Alsbury said the coliseum would have to be built with private capital if work is to be started within the next few years.

REVELSTOKE—City council has decided to end its official opposition to construction of the High Arrow dam on the Columbia River. Council decided to take no action on an invitation to participate in a meeting at Nakusp to plan opposition to the dam after Alderman F. J. PRINCE GEORGE—Prince George Chamber of Commerce Friday urged an immediate start to development of Peace River power without awaiting outcome of studies by the B.C. Energy Board.

The chamber forwarded a proposed resolution to the B.C. Chamber of Commerce for consideration at its conference next month in Vancouver calling on the provincial government to "remove whatever obstructions there may be to immediate development of power on the Peace River."

Burnley Upsets Champs

LONDON (AP)—Burnley's sharp-shooting forwards, headed by left wing Gordon Harris, slammed in four goals in the second half today and defeated Tottenham Hotspur 4-2.

The upset came only six days after Tottenham had made sure of the English soccer championship and a place in the European Cup of Champions next season.

Tottenham shot into a 2-0 half-time lead on goals by Peter Baker and centre forward Bob Smith. Baker's goal was on a 25-yard drive.

It seemed all over but Burnley, still smarting from an English Cup semi-final defeat from Tottenham, stormed on to the attack in the second half. Harris provided a pair of goals and inside forwards Jimmy McIlroy and Bobby Robinson one apiece.

The match was one of the few remaining on the English

Price Fixing Charged In Farm Equipment

(From Times News Service)

OTTAWA—The possibility that a price-fixing combine exists in the farm implement industry was raised before the Commons agriculture committee Friday by the National Farmers' Union.

The union called for a freeze on prices of all farm equipment in Canada for an unspecified period during which it said the Commons committee should study the effects of "administered prices."

Stuart Thiessen, president of the organization which represents farm unions in the western provinces and Ontario, was asked later whether the union was implying that combines exist.

"I didn't say there was a combine," Mr. Thiessen replied. It was the union's opinion that the farm implement companies were competing for sales—but not in price.

The union's brief said at one point:

"... As a result of high-pressure promotional programs designed to draw the attention of the prospective user of farm implements, the costs to farm implement companies for advertising and design changes have been growing at a phenomenal rate and administered prices are a mechanism whereby these increased costs have been passed on to the farmer."

Tory 'Northern Vision' Takes Beating

Derision of government's Northern vision was alleged and denied.

The Liberals deride the vision of Northern development, said Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) in a long recital of expansion he said has developed north of the 60th parallel under the Progressive Conservatives.

All the Liberals have derided is the "ballyhoo" created by the government about its Northern program, retorted Chesley W. Carter (L—Burin-Burgeo). After all, the Liberals had initiated the vision, creating the department of northern affairs and national resources in 1953.

The political scuffling came during study of the department's $83,000,000 spending program for the current fiscal year.

Douglas Fisher (CCF—Port Arthur) said the vision does not point the right way.

Mr. Fisher said resources development lags in spots, a lot farther south than the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

Conservative supporters stoutly defended Northern Af-

Acadia) suggested, there is a great amount of competition among machinery dealers.

Noting first that "I don't want to defend the machine companies," Mr. Horner said he recently bought equipment at the dealer's price and later got a refund directly from the manufacturer.

Mr. Thiessen said the farmers' union does not look on such practices as real price competition.

Farmers are being "oversold" on sales of machines that are bigger than they need in many cases, the union said. This led to an appetite among farmers for more land so they could get maximum efficiency from their machines.

George Muir (PC—Lisgar) disputed this contention. He said many farmers choose larger machines in the belief surplus power in their equipment will make farming easier and lengthen the life of the equipment itself.

"Why should this committee decide that a farmer should have a smaller tractor if he wants a larger one?" the Manitoba MP asked.

That Was Quite a Boost' Says Cool Pilot of X15

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—A test pilot coolly describes as "just routine" a trouble-plagued flight in the X15 rocket plane that set a new controlled flight speed record of 3,140 miles an hour.

Air force Maj. Bob White zoomed more than 50 miles a minute to an altitude of 103,000 feet Friday, thus breaking the old record of 2,905 MPH he had set March 7.

There were tense moments during the 11-minute flight—when the engine quit temporarily and moments later when the swept-wing Dart's pressurized cabin sprang a leak.

White later brushed aside the misuses, saying, "we expect some unusual things to show up in an experimental program." Seconds after the X15 dropped 7,000 feet while White frantically tried to re-start the engine.

FULL THROTTLE

At 37,000 feet the rocket's engine's 57,000 pounds of thrust came on at full throttle slamming White back in the cockpit seat with a force three times that of gravity. Over the radio came White's emotional: "That was quite a boost."

White pulled the X15 into a climbing angle of 30 degrees and the rocket plane shot like a bullet on its first full power run. At 80,000 feet, White had his record and shut off the engine.

His momentum carried him still higher. At 90,000 feet, the cabin sprang a leak and White compensated by inflating his space-type flying suit. At 103,000 feet the X15 reached the top of its flight and White eased the plane's nose gently into a glide back to a landing on a nearby dry lake.

RUSSIAN NOT SPACE VICTIM

'Just Auto Accident'

MOSCOW (UPI)—Sergei Ilyushin, who has been identified abroad as Russia's real "first man in space," is recuperating on the "Russian Riviera" from injuries suffered in an automobile accident, usually reliable sources here said today.

They denied Paris press reports that the 28-year-old son of the famed Soviet aircraft designer was "unbalanced" by his venture into orbit, which was said to have taken place five days before Maj. Yuri Gagarin's widely-heralded flight.

The Paris story, written by a radio-TV correspondent who just returned from Moscow, said Ilyushin was still unconscious in a Moscow hospital.

(London's Communist Daily Worker printed a closely similar story the day before Gagarin's flight, saying the son of a noted Soviet aircraft designer had suffered unspecified ill effects from a space flight.

The Daily Worker retracted its story the following day, after the Kremlin announced Gagarin's flight.

Sources here insisted that young Ilyushin was at a Black Sea resort recovering from auto-accident injuries.

Congo Funds Approved As UN Session Ends

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—

The 15th United Nations General Assembly, longest and most spectacular in the history of the world body, ended at 3:02 a.m. (PST) today after an all-night sitting in which it did an about-face on Congo financing.

The assembly first rejected and then accepted—with slight amendment—a resolution providing for $100,000,000 to cover the costs of the UN Congo force from Jan. 1 until Oct. 31, when a new assembly will be in session to consider new action.

The Canadian delegation scored a major victory—its biggest of the annual meeting—in the final act when it rejected a resolution calling for a full-scale review of UN finances, the greatest problem facing the world body.

Canada had submitted the resolution and then disowned the draft when it was amended out of recognition by Latin American countries. But the assembly deleted the main offending provisions this morning.

SESSION STORMY

The wrangle over Congo finances reflected the stormy tone of the whole session which opened in mid-September, adjourned at Christmas and then resumed March 7.

Acting on two Congo resolutions in the final debate, delegates threw themselves into consternation by rejecting a formula for financing The Congo military operation.

Eighteen Latin American delegations led the voting assault on the draft submitted by Pakistan and Tunisia and the measure received a margin of only 45 to 25 with 27 abstentions—less than the required two-thirds majority.

This was the more startling since Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold's hand-to-mouth authority to borrow for The Congo expired at midnight and, technically at least, the force of 17,000 was left without any financial backing.

Assembly President Frederick Boland of Ireland, at the suggestion of the U.S., adjourned discussion on the topic and after a period of corridor haggling delegates voted again on the proposal.

VOTE CARRIED

This time the vote was 54 to 15 with 23 abstentions after a minor concession had been made to the Latin Americans—a reduction in Congo assessments of 5 per cent from what had been proposed.

One of the most active supporters of the Pakistan-Tunisia draft was Canada. Delegation chairman Wallace B. Nesbitt told the assembly at one point:

"In plain language, if this resolution fails, the whole Congo operation will fall to the ground."

Nesbitt said the assembly earlier made it definitely clear in votes that it wished to support The Congo operation.

"However, these decisions will be absolutely meaningless without provision of the financial means to carry them out," he said.

Victor Sifton

CANADA HAS LOST ONE OF its greatest citizens in the untimely death of Victor Sifton. The editor and publisher of The Winnipeg Free Press had served his country well as a gallant soldier of the first war, an administrator of the second and, in peace, as a devoted servant of many public enterprises. But throughout an eventful life his main interest was the newspaper which he had inherited from his famous father, Sir Clifford Sifton, and his main achievement was to maintain The Free Press as a major force in the nation's affairs.

The secret of his success was an integrity which refused any compromise with his principles. To him The Free Press was not a possession but a trust and journalism a public responsibility. Until his last hour he worked harder than any of his colleagues and undoubtedly his life was shortened by those labors.

Two great influences largely shaped this remarkable career. From his father, the major architect of the prairie provinces, Mr. Sifton learned his love of the west, his unequalled understanding of its problems. From his father's distinguished editor, the late John W. Dafoe, he acquired a broad vision of the nation and the world. From both he inherited a sense of public obligation which made The Free Press more a national institution than a newspaper.

His abilities as the man of business beside Dafoe, the editor, were demonstrated early in his life but it was not until middle age that he turned directly to journalism. Then, to the surprise of the Canadian newspaper world, he established himself in a few years as one of the nation's ablest editors and a brilliant reporter in his own right.

It is especially tragic that his work should end just as it was broadening out in his partnership with the Calgary publisher, Mr. Maxwell Bell, and in a national organization of newspapers including The Victoria Daily Times, but he lived to see that venture well established.

Mr. Sifton was the sort of character around whom legends grow. The somewhat austere public figure, as all his friends knew, hid a many-sided man of secret charities, an inner humility, deep religious beliefs, and superb courage. All those qualities were colored, and all his work dominated by a love of Canada but, perhaps the true measure of his life is the feeling, in every Canadian newspaper office today, that a great force has ended and one of the nation's giants gone.

Defeat in Cuba

ALTHOUGH THERE ARE many conflicting stories emanating from Cuba, the defeat of the invading forces was stark proof that the expected popular uprising against Premier Castro's regime did not occur. Either the planning was premature or the temper of the people was misjudged—in any case the invading force was not sufficient to defeat Castro's troops and Soviet armaments or to inspire a general revolt.

What the future holds is difficult to say, but what is clear is that the anti-Castro elements have suffered a defeat that might almost be termed a fiasco.

What is equally clear, and of more significance, is that the United States and President Kennedy have also suffered a very serious setback.

Moscow will now boast that Western forces have been defeated in an attempt to attack a Communist-backed government. But more important still is the effect on the Latin American states and the world at large.

The United States is now known to have given aid to the invasion forces—training, transportation and arms. The United States must therefore share in the defeat. But it must also bear the burden of critics who will ask what a great peace-loving nation like the United States was doing by taking an active, although hidden, part in a Cuban revolution. Was this an unwarranted intervention? Was this a warlike act against a country with which the United States was not at war?

Mr. Kennedy has attempted to make clear that this was no United States versus Cuba struggle. It was an effort by the United States, as guarantor of the hemisphere against foreign, and particularly Communist, infiltration, to protect itself and all its Latin American allies.

Even Mr. Krushchev, while pushing his Cuban interests to the limit, concedes, as Mr. Lippmann pointed out in a recent article, that no great country could be expected to permit an antagonistic ideological outpost near its shores. To attempt to establish one was to invite retaliation, and Mr. Kennedy gave Russia fair warning that any such effort will be resisted. He has made it clear that American restraint "is not inexhaustible".

This was not a new American policy, although perhaps it has been stated more vigorously by Mr. Kennedy. United States study of possible Cuban invasion plans began during Mr. Eisenhower's tenure.

Mr. Kennedy inherited, not the problem of initiating a study, but the problem of whether to continue with it or not.

On the advice of his intelligence department he continued aid to the exiled Cuban insurgents. The advice was based on a belief that the island nation was ready to rise against Premier Castro and his Communist backers. The advice was wrong, as events have proved, and Mr. Kennedy must carry the full burden.

That burden will be heavy. It will be evidenced in doubts and fears in Latin America, in disapproving remarks from Mr. Nehru, in increased propaganda from behind the Iron Curtain, possibly increased difficulties in United States efforts to settle such problems as Laos.

The big question for Canadians is whether Mr. Kennedy and the United States can ride out this tide, overcome the loss of prestige in certain quarters, and remain unhampered in efforts to settle the larger problems of world peace.

This is not a time for carpings on the part of friends and allies, particularly those on this continent. For the United States' defense of this hemisphere is our defense, its successes are our successes, and its failures measure our own descent into danger.

Overdue

MR. BONNER SAYS THAT THE British Columbia government would welcome federal action giving to Indians the same liquor rights as those enjoyed by other Canadians. Such a move, he adds, is overdue.

The Attorney-General doubtless expresses the view of most people who have studied the question. The Indian will receive few, if any, material physical benefits from easier access to alcohol. Some Indians, it is presumed, will be inclined to drink to excess when the restrictions are removed—just as did some white people when prohibition was eliminated.

But the point made by Mr. Bonner, as he prepares an appeal to clarify a Lillooet magistrate's decision dismissing a liquor charge against an Indian, is clear. He would end the discrimination which fails almost entirely in its efforts to protect the native. He knows, also, that the existence of that discrimination creates a psychological reaction in the Indian which does no good.

Under present regulations the Indian, legally entitled to drink in licensed premises, still manages to get his illicit liquor when he wants and can afford it. He can still buy it from the bootlegger or make it himself under the moon. The sooner he is discouraged from such procedures, the better it will be.

Instead of the Late, Late Show

A JUDGE IN CHICAGO HAS rendered a verdict which seems to strike a valiant blow at togetherness—a blow most individualists will approve in principle.

In practice, it may be different. The judge ruled that a wife could turn on the family television set to whatever channel she wished in spite of the fact that her husband wanted the instrument turned off after 10 o'clock.

"Each has a constitutional right," said the judge, "to watch any program he or she desires. This happens to be a free country."

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

AN exciting and pleasant day's outing may be had at the B.C. Forestry Experimental Station at Cowichan Lake.

As you go down the valley you will see the new forest that has covered the land, a pleasing sight for those who remember when it was nothing but burn stumps and desolation.

At the station you can see Douglas fir seedlings from almost every country in the world that has this particular tree.

These seedlings are being tried out to determine their adaptability to our climate and soil conditions, so that we may be able to grow the tree that will give the best results.

There are some oddly shaped trees that exhibit strange genetic traits.

A ramble through the plots where thinning and pruning are being carried out will show the different growths, including the age-old original forest.

This particular belt of our forest area has been and will again be one of the best timber areas on Vancouver Island.

Along the margin of the lake traces can be found of the Indian tribes from the Nitinat country when they came into the lake area to trade with the old Cowichan bands.

LOOSE ENDS

Right of the Legislature to Manage Its Own Business

THE dispute between the government and the lieutenant-governor of Saskatchewan is said to have no parallel in Canadian history since the confederation of 1867. But it has a parallel of a sort in British Columbia where a lieutenant-governor was dismissed after his quarrel with the legislature. To be sure, the chaotic political situation of the Pacific province in 1900 was quite different from the orderly government prevailing in Saskatchewan today but the issue—the right of the legislature to manage its own business without interference by the crown is basically the same.

Since no organized political parties existed in the provincial politics of British Columbia at that time, the election of 1898 defeated one government without providing a substitute.

THE Lieutenant-governor, Thomas R. McInnes (a veteran Liberal politician) turned in desperation to Charles A. Semlin, leader of the former opposition, who had handful of followers. When the brief Semlin government was defeated by one vote in the legislature and asked the chance to reorganize itself, McInnes demanded its resignation and invited Joseph Martin, the attorney-general, to form a new ministry. For McInnes that was a fatal choice.

Martin already had distinguished himself in Manitoba politics where he was known as "Fighting Joe" and had left the Liberal party there after one of his famous tantrums. In appearance, with his pointed mustache and beard, he resembled a stage Mephistopheles out of "Faust," produced by amateurs. In debate his weapon was a battering ram, and on the platform he was a holy terror.

The speaker looked on, helpless. McInnes, pale with bewilderment, somehow stumbled through the speech and departed hurriedly to find himself described in a local paper next day as the "obese and shining monster."

It was clear to everyone that Martin had no support in the legislature but McInnes continued to support him. The new premier now threw together the most remarkable cabinet ever seen in Canada, appointing any man bold enough to join him. The new ministers—their names previously unknown to the public—lacked any experience and had never been elected to public office. That didn't matter to Fighting Joe. He was the whole government anyway.

THIS was the brilliant, erratic fighting man to whom McInnes entrusted the government of British Columbia, whereupon the legislature was resolved by a vote of 28 to 1 that it lacked confidence in Martin. McInnes had no time to reconsider. At that moment he was already on his way to the legislative buildings to prorogue the annual session.

THE rebellious legislature was ready for him. As he rose to read his speech every member except Martin and the Speaker marched out of the chamber while the crowded galleries cheered, hissed and groaned. Martin, standing by McInnes, his arms folded in Satanic majesty, watched this demonstration without word.

The speaker looked on, helpless. McInnes, pale with bewilderment, somehow stumbled through the speech and departed hurriedly to find himself described in a local paper next day as the "obese and shining monster."

It was clear to everyone that Martin had no support in the legislature but McInnes continued to support him. The new premier now threw together the most remarkable cabinet ever seen in Canada, appointing any man bold enough to join him. The new ministers—their names previously unknown to the public—lacked any experience and had never been elected to public office. That didn't matter to Fighting Joe. He was the whole government anyway.

BUT not for long. Within three months he went to the country and was soundly defeated. Whereupon most of the members-elect met in Vancouver and demanded the dismissal of Lieutenant-Governor McInnes for appointing him in the first place.

McInnes pleaded with Prime Minister Sir Wilfred Laurier that "there has not been, to my knowledge, a governor in Canada who has had such an utterly amorphous and self-seeking pack of politicians from which to seek a stable government as myself. . . . The trouble is that at present we have about as many leaders, or would-be leaders, as followers." The legislature, he said, should decide whether he had acted wisely or unwisely.

L'URIER was tired of this charade. The fact that McInnes had been a life-long Liberal made no difference in the prime minister's eyes. Most British Columbians cheered when a telegram from Ottawa announced that McInnes was dismissed and replaced by Sir Henry Joy de Roblin, a French Canadian who had no interest in the quarreling sects of provincial politics.

James Dunsmuir, a wealthy coal mine owner with no particular partisan views, was asked to form a government and after a year of chaos the business of the province was resumed.

IN his final dictum on this curious affair Laurier wrote: "We must have constitutional government in all parts of the Dominion. . . . The ordinary methods of responsible government ought not to be departed from." Possibly that dictum is being reread in Ottawa today.

Extremists of the Right Have Not Done Too Well Here

ONE of the things that disturbs Canadians about their neighbors to the south is the periodic manifestation in the U.S. of what is known politely as arch-conservatism.

McCarthyism is the first example that comes to mind, although any number of examples could be laid out in evidence of the latent strength of the extreme right in the U.S. In the pre-war period it was the America First, the German Bund, the Gould KKK.

McCarthyism is now a spent force, but new movements continue to sweep across the republic, bringing together the neo-Fascists, the race-baiters, the anti-Semites, the economic reactionaries. In the South, hooded Klansmen have given way to what are known as White Citizens Councils, whose members wear business suits instead of white sheets.

And now there is the disclosure of the existence of the John Birch Society, which has members in Congress itself, a society dedicated to the belief that Communists have taken over control in the U.S., with the willing support of such well-known "Communists" as former Presidents Eisenhower and Truman, Chief Justice Warren and hundreds of other prominent Americans.

Canadians have always taken an amused interest in such goings-on, and have assumed, rightly or wrongly, that "it couldn't happen here." There is an inherent belief in the soundness of the Canadian political structure, which finds all parties marching firmly down the middle-of-the-road.

At no time has Canada experienced the hysterical approach to Communism residents of the U.S. have been subjected to for several decades, and it may be that this all-pervading propaganda attack itself has led to the development of the extremists of the right, a form of counter-balance in the field of politi-

Let there be no mistake, the extreme right is every bit as dangerous as the extreme left, but in the U.S. the concern is all for the left, and the right has been left to spread and grow.

It has been growing in Canada too, but, since our approach to the dangers of Communism has been far more moderate, unattended by witch-hunts, loyalty oaths and the like, the extremists of the right have not done too well.

In the House of Commons, only a handful of MPs could be considered arch-conservatives. The fact there is such a handful is a cause for concern, but, generally, they are ignored by all parties.

The majority have found a home in the Conservative party, and many are from Quebec, where they formerly worked with Duplessis. It is hard to gauge their strength, but it can be assumed they have little say in the formation of party policy.

The West, particularly Alberta, has sent a number of extremists to Ottawa, some of the crackpot variety, who cry of the dangers of the "Turko-Mongolian Conspiracy," whatever that may be, but who beneath the surface are cut from the same mold as other extremists; they are anti-Semitic, anti-Negro—generally anti anything that is not White and Protestant.

In past years, Social Credit was notorious for sending right-wing extremists to Parliament.

IN the country as a whole, there is little evidence of any considerable right-wing strength. A few pamphleteers, such as the one in a small Ontario town, a former Social Credit booster, who peddles paperback books on the "Jewish International Conspiracy" and other subjects dear to the hearts of the extremists of the right, are still in business.

The fact such gentlemen can survive in a financial sense is a clear indication there is some right-wing strength, but it is so diversified and unorganized that it can be discounted as a political force.

'HONESTLY, MYNHEER, IT WAS COLOSSAL'

Literature Purged of Fake-Antique-Dealing Atmosphere

I SUPPOSE I should have known better, but I turned on the box the other night hoping to get some laughs out of CBC's Q for Quest program on S. J. Perelman. I mean no disrespect for The CBC, on whom, as you know, I lavish an affection that in earlier years I used to reserve for the Bennett-sisters, Joan and Constance—it is just that after a good many disappointments

I should have learned that humor like Mr. Perelman's belongs on the printed page, and should be left there. The essence of his particular gift lies in the fantastically inconsequential picture he can conjure up out of even the tiresome cliché. Do you remember the occasion on which he describes himself as talking to someone like a Dutch uncle, and immediately goes on: "I can't give you the accent now, but honestly, Mynheer, it was colossal."

Perelman appeared on the program once, and was not tremendously funny, though he was not so lugubrious as most writers whose business it is to make people laugh all the time. This again, is not surprising.

The humorist is not a clown: of the writers who have made me laugh longest for longest, I cannot remember that was not of a grave and thoughtful cast of countenance. And the moment I have made that confident assertion I remember Robert Benchley, who was certainly a comic actor ofimitable talent; in fact, I would rate those short "How To . . ." films that he made above anything that he ever wrote for the printed page.

The CBC would perhaps have derived a more rewarding program from a serious interview with Perelman. His account of what blindness is like struck me as the most courageous description of that particular misfortune since Wyndham Lewis' own graphic recital of the onset of what he called the "Sea Mists of Winter" in a BBC talk ten years ago.

Perelman's unemotional explanation of the differences between his life now, and his life as he lived it for years with gradually worsening vision was an object lesson to those with lesser handicaps or none. He has even, in his writings, capitalized on his fading vision.

Do you remember the Japanese admiral, in full uniform, that he used to see whenever he misplaced or broke his glasses? The admiral, as I recall, was unusual in preferring a bicycle to the more normal methods of land transportation favored by high-ranking naval officers, of whatever nation, on their excursions ashore.

This foreign naval aberration was not the only one that plagued Thurber on those occasions: was there not also some kind of animal that sat brooding on top of a neighboring brownstone house, only to vanish along with the admiral, when the absent-minded writer had recovered his spectacles?

What a writer Thurber is! I am amazed to find people who dismiss him as a funny writer, merely—"mer

"How Silly . . ."

"How silly can the society get." Reference your editorial in issue of April 15 dealing with the U.S.A. John Birch Society.

The answer might well be that these people began to get silly after certain unusual events, some of which can be noted:

(1) Loss of their tremendously powerful naval force during thirty minutes at Pearl Harbor, and the consequences thereof.

(2) Appointment of a commander-in-chief for their armies in Europe who lacked prior active war service experience.

(3) The extraordinary arrangements for occupation and control of the German capital city of Berlin.

(4) The Communist take-over in China.

(5) Episodes in the Korean war and disgraceful treatment of old warrior and national idol General Douglas MacArthur.

(6) U.S.A. support of Nasser rule in Egypt and opposition at Suez to her allies Israel, France, and Britain.

(7) What will be the final verdict of history as to the severity of the bomb on Hiroshima?

U.S.A. presidents wield great power and influence and therefore must accept a great deal of responsibility for government actions.

Books for Boys

The Boys Club of Victoria, in addition to its many other facilities, does its best to create an interest in books among its members by providing a small library of volumes particularly interesting, attractive and suitable for boys. These may be consulted by the boys and borrowed by them at any time.

At present this library is much too small, consisting of about 450 volumes for a membership of 500. Its popularity is evidenced by the rapidity of circulation, being about two books per boy per month. Of course the club is less than a year old so at least this is a fair start.

The club directors are very appreciative of the generosity of the public in donating the books now in the library and are most desirous that additional books be added as soon as possible.

It is very important that boys' club books should be specially chosen for their suitability for boys. There must be many households in which the are now grown up and have no longer any use for the books in which were interested in their teens. These are the books the club would like to have. For others who wish to donate books, it might be said that in general ideal boys' books are those specially written for boys, such as the Henty books, the Hardy books and most adventure and exploration books, and for the younger boys books about dogs and horses.

Now that our thoughts are particularly directed towards libraries by the celebration of Library Week is a good time to obey that impulse and send some surplus boys' books to the Boys' Club Library. A call to the club manager at EV 3-2041 will bring someone to pick up the books at any convenient time.

Depressing

There is a report by Tony Dickason in the Times of April 8 on a speech by Dr. Marcus Long before the Men's Canadian Club on Friday, April 7, at noon.

That speech in toto must have been very depressing and sad, judging by all the newspaper extracts. For instance the doctor stated that this century will definitely see the end of white supremacy in the world, and that to fight this trend would be a futile endeavor.

Naturally if one does not make an effort one will inevitably go down and the same applies to groups and nations. It is therefore up to professors, teachers and parents to encourage the rising generation to at least emulate the deeds of their fathers.

Surely Dr. Long has enough confidence in the men in his profession to do their part. If his and their endeavors are sincere then the white man will certainly be able to retain his place as a leader of the world's people.

Elsewhere in his speech Dr. Long asserted that Canada has no flag, no national anthem. This nonsense from a man who as well as being a professor at Toronto University is said to be an author on international affairs, a news analyst and a commentator. Let the doctor refer to order in council of September 5, 1945, and he will find it declared that the Canadian red ensign is our national flag. And surely any schoolboy could enlighten the professor if asked about our national anthem.

Do you think the professor was trying to be funny at the luncheon party?

New Bible Sales

We have received a letter from the Oxford University Press and the Macmillan Company of Toronto which jointly distributed the New Testament in Canada.

Both managers of these reliable publishing houses in Canada state they doubt the veracity of the information carried in a recent Victoria Times story on Easter Bible sales here.

Macmillan Company further state: "As for the estimate of 'another store' that they have sold by 8th of April 15,000 copies this seems to us quite preposterous."

We were not consulted on our sales and Mr. Hamilton, of the Christian Book Room, unsolicited told me he was not asked for sales figures.

Our only reason for writing you is that we feel that statements in a newspaper should be reasonably correct.

The "Royal Jelly"

There is a prominently placed apartment building in Oak Bay which calls itself The Royal Newport.

And I see that the new waxworks is also going to call itself Royal.

I wonder whether the time has not come to end this use of the word "royal". To begin with, it is illegal under Section 9 of the Trade Mark Act, and an appeal for action can be made.

Second, it is repugnant to many Victorians who think that royalty should be maintained in a special category, and illegitimate kinship should not be claimed for commercial gain.

Success to your ventures, gentlemen, but under your own banners, please.

A WRITER'S DIARY

By ROBERTSON DAVIES

Not many best-sellers read well after 48 years. The very quality of timeliness, of catching the ear of their age, which wins their first popularity, works against a long life. I have just read Compton Mackenzie's Sinister Street, which made its appearance on Sept. 1, 1913; it caused a sensation because two of the most important leading libraries decided not to buy it—the equivalent of a ban—and because so much of its contents shocked the reading public.

It is not sensational now, but it is well worth reading, for it has rare, if not great qualities. (Penguin has just republished it).

The sincerity of the book's inspiration, and the excellence against certain other people; this is a condition of class, and class is inescapable. Further, Fane and his sister Stella have been Don Quixote.

So, in fit of quixotic madness, he seeks out a girl with whom he had a boyish love-affair, and who has since become a harlot, and wants to marry her. She is quite willing to marry, but unable to give up being a harlot.

The miseries of the child born out of wedlock who grows up in squalor have been explored by scores of writers; this is the only book I know that tells of children who lack for nothing, materially, but suffer the subtler deprivation of parental care.

Studies Music

Michael and Stella are brought up by servants, sometimes benevolent, sometimes drunken tyrants; in time they are supplied with a governess, a kindly woman of character, and warmth; Michael goes to a good school, and Stella is enabled to study music under the best circumstances.

But their mother is rarely at home, and Michael sees his father only once, not knowing who he is. Both children grow up as outsiders with a strong desire to belong to the close-knit society of the well-to-do middle class.

Stella, after experience of a mild Bohemianism, marries Michael's best friend, a "decent chap" who is an excellent cricketer, and her music takes second place to a conventional country life. Michael is delighted with it's outcome. Stella is secure; she has found her place.

Not All Paladins

Edwardian gentlemen were undoubtedly a admirable in many ways, but they were not paladins, any more than democratic idealists can be paladins. The whole book is an exposition of man's yearning for certainty, for ideals and beliefs; that time and circumstance cannot alter. Its fine portrait of a period in particular the best exposition of life at Oxford that I have ever encountered is secondary to this hunger for faith and as it is today.

To be a gentleman, to know what the obligations of class and money were, to have the secure bulwark of a gentleman's education—these suffice.

Class Inescapable

But Michael sees too clearly not to miss the fact that one is only a gentleman for some people if one is a gentleman.

World Leadership As Monty Saw It

THE PATH TO LEADERSHIP, Field Marshall Viscount Montgomery of Alamein. Collins, 1961. 256 pp. $4.25.

Reviewed by R. H. ROY

"Monty" has written another book (and this must be his fifth at least) in his usual terse, unadulterated style which makes one think he must write with a sharp bayonet dipped in ink.

He writes as he would speak—absolutely forthright, sincere, and very much to the point. At the same time he rarely lets the reader forget who is writing, and one could wish that he did not drag in his own past deeds, famous as they are, when it is obviously superfluous to do so.

For example, in one chapter he writes about Lord Nuffield as a captain of industry, and describes his first meeting in these words:

"I first met Nuffield in 1944, before the Normandy campaign. I had been ordered to return to England from the Eighth Army to take command of 21 Army Group and to prepare the Allied Land Forces, British and American, for the cross-channel attack under the Supreme Command of General Eisenhower."

Surely the average reader would be sufficiently aware of the Field Marshal's background without having this sort of thing dragged in front of his eyes.

ON LEADERSHIP

But if Monty's egotism shows through periodically, it is a minor fault. What will interest the reader is not only Montgomery's own comments on leadership, but his opinion of many of the world's leaders whom he has either met personally, or those he has studied.

These range from DeGaulle to Nehru, from Churchill to Moses, and from Cromwell to Mao Tse-Tung.

It would be unfair to paraphrase his opinions since they would lose their meaning out of context.

One does get the impression, however, that Monty uses himself as a measuring rod in assessing leadership and, certainly, to judge from the three words he uses time and again (character, intelligence, decision) to describe the great leaders, he might have done worse.

Portrait of Duncan de Keromeaux, former Victoria artist, by Denes Devenyi. One of a collection of portraits of B.C. artists by Mr.

Devenyi, also a former Victorian, which will be seen at the Victoria Art Gallery this summer.

ART IN REVIEW

By ARTHUR CORRY

Devenyi's Portrait Lens Reveals Many Dimensions

Once in a very long while one meets an artist who can be classed as a genius. Last week I interviewed just such a person, not a painter or sculptor, but a portraitist with the camera.

Over the last year several artists have exhibited paintings in Victoria and, although I have criticized their work, I have never met any of them.

From a series of portraits by Denis Devenyi I saw these artists for the first time, and Mr. Devenyi did not have to name them to me.

Here is where the genius comes in. He has been able to capture, by the means of a single picture, not only a good likeness of the artist, but also a feeling of the personality. It is possible to view one of his studies and visualize, as well as the presence of the artist, his examination of mood and even the feeling of his painting.

During the month of July we will fortunately be able to see an exhibition of Denes Devenyi's work at Victoria Art Gallery, in a one-man show. Portraits of prominent B.C. artists and sculptors, approximately 40, will be featured.

TIMES START

This, of course, is not the first time Victorian's have seen work by this photographer. Several news pictures were published by the Times in 1958.

After fleeing from Hungary with his wife in 1957, Mr. Devenyi attended UBC, and then worked for the B.C. Power Commission here in Victoria. During this time he developed a keen interest in the "finer" art of camera portraiture.

Both artists left Victoria, one for Ottawa and the other for Vancouver, where they pursue their respective artistic callings.

It is interesting to note that both Duncan de Keromeaux and Denes Devenyi, teacher and student, assisted in the work on the mural in the editorial office of the Victoria Times.

Malaya seems to be everlastingly celebrating the installation of new rulers. A special 10 cent stamp for Kelantan and another for Selangor will commemorate these events in their respective states.

Ghana is correcting an error in inscription in the current 10 cent and 3 cent values which will now read "Gye Nyame."

Malta has added still another "George Cross" commemorative set, to the three that have already been issued.

They are Stephen Leacock's Laugh With Leacock and N. J. Mind, 1956 winner of the Governor-General's award for creative non-fiction.

The series is distributed in Canada by McClelland and Stewart.

More than 1,500,000 copies of the Gideon Bible and New Testament have been distributed in the last 50 years in Canada.

A chilling and thrilling account.

Three colonies celebrate their stamp centenaries in the near future—Grenada, with a set of three (3c, 8c, 25c), showing medallions of Queen Victoria and Elizabeth II; St. Christopher-Nevis (2c, 8c, 12c and 24c), and Hong Kong, details of this latter not being available yet.

Pitcairn Island will have a special issue of three stamps to mark the return of the islanders from Norfolk Island.

It is a quick trip, however, covered in 123 pages. The author skims through this period, providing little more than an outline of the events of the last 20 years and never pausing long enough to give dimension to the book's characters.

Although this is fiction many of the events are real enough, Cottingham Park is a thin disguise for Notting Hill Gate in the novel, and the "race riots" in Notting Hill made front page news only a few years ago, as did the tube party of the bored debutantes and their equally jaded escorts.

ROBIN WOOD
... fine program

Piano Master In Recital Tonight

Last opportunity this season to hear brilliant former Victoria pianist Robin Wood in recital, occurs tonight when the Musical Art Society presents the outstanding and widely-known musician at Oak Bay Junior High School.

Mr. Wood's program features Beethoven, Mozart, Chopin and Liszt. His interpretations of these composers' works, particularly the 32 Variations of Beethoven with which he will open his program, and his Chopin, have received warm acclaim in the super-critical British press.

Early next week Mr. Wood will return to England to keep concert and television engagements in London.

Theatrical Scholarship Fund Planned

All proceeds from ticket sales from 1961 summer drama productions at the University of British Columbia will be used to establish an extension department theatre scholarship fund for budding actors and actresses.

Miss Dorothy Somerset, head of UBC's theatre department and summer school of theatre, said such a fund would help solve the financial problems of many talented young people who are unable to take advantage of training offered at the UBC's summer session.

BACK AS GUEST

This summer students will stage Howard Richardson's fantasy "Dark of the Moon." It will be directed by Robert Gill, of Hart House Theatre, Toronto, who is returning to the UBC as guest director.

A series of studio performances, enabling all students to actively take part in theatre presentations, are also planned.

The seven-week-long school of theatre will run from July 3 to August 19. A staff of 12 directors, instructors and technical assistants will teach acting, speech, directing, scene design, stage crafts, theatre history and children's theatre.

Details regarding fees, scholarships and accommodation can be obtained from the UBC extension department, Vancouver 8, B.C.

Glamorous Premiere For Ballet

First night of the six-day run of the film, "The Royal Ballet," starring Margot Fonteyn, at the Odeon Theatre, May 1, is to be a really glamorous affair.

Sponsored by the Women's Committee of the Victoria Symphony Society, it will be attended by Lieut-Governor and Mrs. Pearkes, and following the film, which starts at 8:30, a reception will be held in the spacious theatre foyer.

Decorations by the committee will be in harmony with the ballet theme and dancers from Wynne Shaw's Studio will be en tableaux in the foyer.

Ballets to be seen during the film are "Swan Lake," Act II, "Firebird" and "On-Dine." The film is in full color and features leading male dancer Michael Somes.

Robert Goulet Already Seeks New Conquests

By DICK KLEINER
NEW YORK (NEA) — Robert Goulet is Broadway's newest star. But already he's restless while eagerly waiting for the chance to soar in some new theatrical sky.

As Sir Lancelot in "Camelot," Goulet's perfect features remain in the memory of a young Robert Taylor, and his powerful tenor voice is one of the finest vocal instruments on the Broadway scene. He's in a smash hit which will undoubtedly run for years.

And yet —

"Being in a big Broadway show," Goulet says, "is something I've always wanted. But somehow I woke up the morning after opening night and I didn't have the feeling of exultation I had expected. For a week afterwards, I was terribly depressed.

"Finally, I decided it was because I had achieved a goal and had no goal to strive for. So now I have to dream about something else."

It will be a long time before he can do any more than dream. He's tied up to "Camelot" for two years. The impatience to get on with his career, now that he's established, is contractually curbed.

NEW ENGLANDER

Goulet — the name is pronounced Goo-lay — was born in Massachusetts. He was a child when his father died and his mother took him back to her home in Edmonton, Canada. It was there that he grew up and finally decided his future was in music. He studied at the conservatory in Toronto.

The Goulet family was always musically inclined. His father had been a good amateur singer; the family gatherings always turned into song-fests.

"My aunt tells me that when I was two and one-half," he says, "there was one of these family song-fests and I said, 'Why can't I sing, too?' From then on, for several years, I always sang for the family. But then I suddenly realized that everyone was watching me and I became shy."

For the next few family song-fests, the boy would absent himself at singing time. He timed his absences carefully, so that he would always return as the singing ended. Finally, his father, took him aside for one of those man-to-boy talks.

"He gave me a talking to," Goulet says. "God gave you a voice," he said, "and you should use it." I did."

DREW BLANK

He tried summer stock. He tried radio. He tried New York, sharing a cockroach-infested apartment with a friend while selling Christmas cards and gift wrapping at a department store to earn eating money. Nothing happened.

Then he went back to Canada and became a big star on television there. But his "Camelot" break came from left field. Don Harron, an actor now in "The Tenth Man," was called in to audition for the big Lerner and Loewe musical. Harron said he was already signed for "The Tenth Man," but suggested they listen to Goulet. The two men had worked together in summer stock once or twice, but they were never great friends. Nevertheless, Harron suggested Goulet.

He flew down for an afternoon, sang and read for the part, and got it. But it was one and one-half years between then and opening night.

And so there is a basis for his impatience. He has already seen evidence of what he can do and where he can go, based on his "Camelot" reception. TV wants him, so does Hollywood. Eventually, he will be one of the big ones.

"I want to be a singing actor," he says. And then, with a modesty which can't be conveyed by written words, he added, "I want to be like Alfred Drake. I can sing better than Drake, but I'm not yet the actor he is."

He knows this will have to wait until his "Camelot" commitment is fulfilled. Waiting is difficult for a man with the ambition and talent of Goulet. He wants the future to hurry up.

"I'm terribly impatient," he says. "How about a screen test this afternoon?"

LONG CAREER OVER

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jerry Brown, a versatile film horse, probably appeared in more motion pictures than any other horse. The horse, recently retired after his 23rd birthday, could run loose, chase, take falls, jump and double as a pack animal.

Decorations by the committee will be in harmony with the ballet theme and dancers from Wynne Shaw's Studio will be en tableaux in the foyer.

Ballets to be seen during the film are "Swan Lake," Act II, "Firebird" and "On-Dine." The film is in full color and features leading male dancer Michael Somes.

'Finest Quartet Singing I've Heard in 25 Years'

By AUDREY JINSON

Wind-up night for the first week of the Greater Victoria Music Festival provided a cross-section of some of the best of the talent the festival uncovered this year.

In honor performances Friday night at Central Junior High School, there were moments of music making that were almost unbelievably excellent.

Two top contests of the festival were held and resulted in the vocal championship Rose Bowl being won by young soprano Sally Seymour with soprano Margaret Thomson and soprano Carol James.

Monday morning string classes will commence at St. Andrew's Hall, speech arts in Woodsorth Hall. Monday afternoon there will be speech contests at Oak Bay Junior High and folk dancing at Central Junior High. Double sessions will be held in the evening with speech arts continuing at Woodsorth Hall and school orchestras and bands at Central.

Colorful Statistic

NEW YORK (UPI) — Some colorful facts from an organization called the Vat Dye Institute:

Homemakers in the 30's and 40's are more apt to buy color than younger or older women; color acceptance rises moderately with income scale; high school or college educated women tend to be somewhat more receptive to color.

To remove heat stain from furniture, apply a thin paste of salt and sand oil on the surface. Let stand an hour and then remove. The stain will respond if the heat has not penetrated the grain of the wood.

Color Provides Specific Effects

The choice of colors for the home is a science as well as an art.

Here are some of the principles, compiled by the decorating staff of a national chain of stores.

Pale colors, which make rooms seem bigger, also carry the eye into the distance and draw attention to the outdoors in rooms with a view.

Strong, bold colors, which make rooms look smaller, can also be used on the 10-foot high ceilings of older homes to make them appear lower.

One dominant color is enough for any room. Other colors should complement or accent the dominant color rather than compete with it. The dominant color can be varied by using different shades and tints of it, as in a dark green rug, pale green walls and slightly deeper green draperies.

Colors in the red and yellow families lend warmth and should be used in at least one major area of any room with windows facing north, east or northeast.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Unkindly Regarded Broom Bright Garden Subject

By JACK BEASTALL

Some plants never gain the recognition they deserve as garden subjects because of an unpleasant association, and one such group contains the plants known under the collective name of Brooms.

Although a rose by any other name would smell as sweet, broom by a different name would be much more popular with gardeners.

So many of us have had to eradicate the common broom from our properties that we classify all brooms as objectionable weeds, and this is as unfair as it is unkind. I am sure that our neighbors because one failed to return a borrowed cup of sugar.

As with heathers, the common name "broom" is loosely applied to two genera, genista and cytisus. Genista (jen-is-ta) comes from the Celtic, meaning "a small bush," and cytisus (usually sit-e-sus, but sight-is-us by the purists) from the Greek for trefoil, since many species have leaves akin to the clovers.

The common name of "broom" originated from the use of Cytisus scoparius twigs bunched in a bunch to make a sweeping broom.

CLOSE RELATIVE
The brooms are so closely related to the laburnum that standards are made similar to the standard roses, using the laburnum roots and trunk for the base stock and grafting a head of broom on top. When the pendant broom branches are in flower the effect is that of a fountain discharging a spray of tiny golden balls.

Not all brooms are large shrubs, nor are they all upright in habit. There are prostrate forms which hug the ground and rocks to give a yellow carpet when in bloom. These are excellent for the rockery.

Now are all broom flowers confined to the yellows and golds. There are white forms, and today's hybrids run through the reds to the purples, and together with the golds give many fascinating bicolor combinations which cause the uninitiated to stand agast.

The upright brooms also vary in height. Some, when established, are rounded shrubs to three feet and twice as wide as high, others have a more upright habit to five or six feet, slender and graceful.

While the common broom is almost leafless, there are species with leaves of surprising size, and others whose flowering twigs radiate from the ends of the branches in the manner of a long-needed pine (Genista radiata).

SEVERAL WEEKS
We think of brooms as spring flowering, and most of them fall into this category. But some are earlier than others and a careful selection can give color for several weeks.

It is the summer flowering all forms of the cotoneaster and one with nothing but brooms. The idea is comparable to a garden of roses, but anyone of these three would be more interesting.

MISLEADING

Most gardening books mislead the gardener on the culture of brooms when they specify a poor, gravelly soil in full sun and a dry location.

The recommended gravelly soil is another way of expressing good drainage, for wet feet in winter will be their death. Any normally drained garden soil will keep their feet happy.

The term "poor" should not be taken literally. In this instance it does not mean a piece of soil where nothing else will grow. Better to interpret it as a soil not heavily enriched with manure or fertilizer.

A dry location is again a well drained spot, and brooms will thrive under conditions too dry for other plants. That is, after they have become established and their roots have penetrated deeply.

As with all plants in the garden, watering is essential until the roots have found their depth, and this means careful watering throughout the first summer, and the second summer, too, under some conditions. More brooms are lost through lack of water in their early years than from any other cause.

Decorator Colorings Invoke Mood

You can't have a satisfied patron in a kitchen-brown day," said Mr. Martin. "Gloom has gone, and people are happier because of this touch which leading decorators on this continent are advocating." This is the opinion of city painting contractor George Martin, whose last job was redoing the interior of the tavern in the Drake Hotel. Previously, walls were a muddy brown. Now they are a light mauve shade, bright blue; but "controlled" use of trim, with an apple blossom motif gracing pillars.

Well Built Chimney Will Last Lifetime

In a well-designed house the chimney should harmonize with the rest of the structure. Wherever possible it should actually enhance the general appearance of the building but its main purpose is functional, rather than decorative.

There are three things basic to a good chimney. First, it must be able to draw off all gases and smoke resulting from the combustion of fuels. Its efficiency in this respect will depend on the size of the flue, the height of the chimney, and the air pressure within the stack, though this factor is sometimes difficult to control.

Second, it must be fire-proof. A poorly constructed chimney is a constant fire hazard, especially if solid fuels are used.

Third, the chimney must be built to last. Acids produced by combustion have a corrosive effect, and cause certain types of masonry to disintegrate more rapidly than others. These acids can be harmful to metals.

NO ECONOMY

When quality materials are used, and the chimney is put up by competent tradesmen, it can be expected to give satisfactory service throughout the life of the house.

A poorly built chimney, on the other hand, may require repairs every few years. In the long run, it will prove expensive.

In many instances a chimney has two flues, one for the fireplace and one for the central heating unit. Since this type of chimney is more massive than a single-flue chimney, it can be made to blend more easily with the general appearance of the house.

A chimney can be built either inside or outside the building, or within the house itself. There are advantages in having the chimney enclosed within the structure, since some of the heat that would otherwise be lost is radiated through the living area. Moreover, an inside chimney is not subject to as large a variation of temperature between top and bottom, and condensation which releases destructive acids is less likely to do damage.

HIGH POINT

Both exterior and interior masonry chimneys are built in basically the same fashion. The exposed portion of the chimney above the roof should not be more than four times the diameter of the chimney, unless bracing is provided. In any case, the chimney should project at least three feet above its highest point of contact with the roof.

If it is within ten feet of the ridge or roof peak, the chimney top must be at least two feet higher than the ridge for proper performance.

Masonry chimneys are heavy and their footings have to support a greater load per square foot than footings for any other part of the house.

A well-built chimney carried to a proper height is necessary to best operation of the heating unit.

For outside chimneys the footing can be poured as one unit with the foundation footing. For interior chimneys, however, a separate footing is required. It is unsound to have a basement column and a chimney share the same footing, unless it has been designed by an engineer.

A masonry chimney with a flue lining needs only one row of brick, but two rows are required if the flue is not lined. Chimney lining is usually made of vitreous clay tile.

COMMON FLUE

For a furnace flue the minimum inside diameter of the lining is seven inches, but a fireplace flue needs a larger cross-section.

Each heating unit should have its own flue, except for gas-fired appliances which may share a common flue if special automatic shut-offs are provided for each connected appliance.

For example, the stove, the furnace and the water heater, all using gas as fuel, may be connected to the one chimney flue.

To reduce the fire hazard joints between chimney bricks should be completely filled with mortar. This applies both to the vertical and horizontal joints.

When the mortar has begun to set the joints should be "pointed," including joints in that section of the chimney to be concealed within walls. Pointing hardens the surface.

When the excess mortar squeezed out of a joint is left hanging along the edge, it dries out too rapidly and crumbles away. The mortar inside the joint is sometimes affected as well.

Joints in the flue lining should not line up horizontally with joints in the brick-work enclosing the flue. At times it is difficult to avoid doing this but joints should be staggered as much as possible.

To raise carpet nap pressed down by furniture, rub gently in the direction of the nap with the dull edge of a knife blade.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

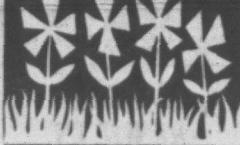

Fuchsias in pots grow rapidly. Each growing shoot can be pinched out to produce bushiness. This process can be carried on until six weeks before blooms are wanted. A weak solution of balanced fertilizer will also make for sturdiness.

Geraniums and other pelargoniums which are to be kept in small pots for planting out later, should also receive a little balanced fertilizer every two weeks.

Late flowering varieties of chrysanthemums to be grown in pots should now be placed outside at every opportunity even if taken in at night.

Remove some of the thinner stems of such perennials as delphinium, phlox, aster (Michaelmas-daisy), helonium and solidago (Goldenrod). The remaining stems will give finer blooms and a better effect.

Vegetable plants such as onions, lettuce, summer cauliflower and cabbage can all be put into well prepared soil. Firm the cabbages thoroughly.

'THURSDAY LEAGUE' PARTNERS . . .

. . . MAY MEET IN TIMES OPEN FINAL

George Could Be Looking Over Shoulder

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Dr. George Bigelow will have to be excused if he lets it slip out that he's pulling for Fred Ranson on Sunday.

And vice-versa.

Dr. Bigelow's game is with Laurie Kerr and Ranson plays Norm Boden. That's the lineup and the stakes are berths in the finals of the Times Vancouver Island Open golf meet.

The 36-hole semifinals are scheduled for Gorge Vale Sunday with the morning round starting at 9 and the afternoon round at 1:30.

Bigelow and Kerr tee off first, and it's a good bet that the Doc will insist on glancing back, ever so often. And, undoubtedly, Ranson will be keenly interested in what's going on up ahead.

Ranson and Dr. Bigelow are regular partners in the "Thursday Afternoon League," and it's their gnawing desire to cross irons in the 36-hole final at Uplands April 30.

The Thursday League is the place placed on regular weekly battles between a group of Victoria's leading golfers. The swingers carry their fierce rivalry alternately to each of the four major courses.

It's a tough league, as they say in the trade, and you would have to suspect the Thursday sessions have done much to help push Fred into the top echelon of Victoria golf circles. Although Ranson has never won a major tournament, the Thursday League's best members unanimously agree he is one of the toughest match-play performers around. The former lacrosse player's ability in match play also came to the fore last year when he picked up many valuable points for Uplands' team in the Inter-Club League matches.

The Thursday League moved to Gorge Vale this week to permit Dr. Bigelow and Ranson to get in a practice round. Both scored well despite high winds and generally miserable conditions. Playing the back tees, Ranson parred eight of the first nine holes and Dr. Bigelow, who finished with a two-over 74, birdied five of the first six holes on the back nine. Dr. Bigelow birdied 10, 11, 12, 13, then parred the 14th and picked up another birdie on the 15th.

That's not the best kind of news that Kerr, defending B.C. Amateur champion, wants to hear.

The meeting of Kerr and Bigelow is an oddity in itself. Although both are veterans and among the best-known golfers in Victoria, they have never met in any match-play tournament.

Of the semifinalists, Kerr, four-time city amateur king, is the only former winner of The Daily Times Trophy. Boden, a Gorge Vale greenskeeper, is the lone professional.

Semifinals in the handicap chase for the Hugh Francis Trophy get under way a few minutes after the open battles move off the first tee. Gorge Vale swingers Earl Francis and Tom MacIntyre clash in one handicap semi, and Bert Cappage of Oak Bay faces Gorge Vale's Dr. Don Carlow in the other 36-hole tussle.

HAPPY TO MEET YOU . . .

Although both are veterans of tournament competition, Dr. George Bigelow (left) and Laurie Kerr have yet to meet head on in major golf event. Introduction comes Sunday at Gorge Vale when they cross clubs in semifinal round of Times Vancouver Island Open. (Times Photo by Bill Halkett.)

SIDELINE SLANTS

BY

Doug Peden

It's a mere 28 years since George Bigelow won an Open golf crown and the divotting doctor doesn't see anything unusual in the fact that he hopes to make it an even two a week come Sunday.

A few weeks ago, a lot of fairway folk would have told you that shooting for the Vancouver Island Open tee title was just a mite too ambitious a target for a guy getting ready to celebrate his 52nd birthday. They're not so sure today because the Oak Bay belter has whittled down the odds and now only two obstacles remain between him and The Daily Times Trophy.

They are both formidable ones and nobody is more aware of the fact than Dr. Bigelow, who won the Saskatchewan Open in 1933 and tucked away Saskatchewan Amateur titles in 1933, '35 and '38.

First, and certainly packing the most imposing credentials, is Laurie Kerr, the reigning B.C. Amateur king, who tangles with Bigelow in a 36-hole semifinal duel over the hills of Gorge Vale tomorrow. Winner of that one goes into the Island final against either Norm Boden or Fred Ranson, who will be trudging the Gorge fairways in Sunday's other semi.

At least two things will be working for Doc when they start swinging Sunday. For one thing, there are no water hazards on the Gorge course. And his "hoodoo" has vanished from the scene.

Kerr took care of the "hoodoo" business at Colwood last Sunday when he carved out a victory over lean John Merriman, who had twice ousted Bigelow in former Island Opens.

George didn't do so well in a personal struggle with water. He dunked a shot into the drink on Colwood's fourth and repeated the transgression on the 13th. Both splashes cost him a hole in his match with defending champion Art Donaldson.

The first splash left him in the precarious position of two down. The second wasn't very serious because by that time he was packing a 3-up advantage and it was only a matter of time until he nailed down the victory.

In between he put together a string of remarkably efficient golf shots, taking seven out of eight holes, and if he has the same kind of shots in his bulging bag Sunday it could be a rough day for Kerr.

Doc Takes Daily Doses of Exercise

It has been hinted that Bigelow, at 51, will find the 36-hole route on the hilly Gorge layout a bit too tough, but don't count on it.

There may or may not be truth in the tale that the fairway physician came to Victoria because the suns landed too early and stayed too late on Saskatchewan courses. But it is a matter of record that since arriving he has been taking almost daily doses of brisk exercise on city courses. Doc is one of our busiest divotors. He's strong, a fierce competitor and in remarkably good condition. Trips of 36 holes are nothing new and he shouldn't be bothered by Sunday's distance.

The same can't be said for Kerr's talents. When he's swinging right, the 31-year-old, four-time city Amateur champ can bother the best in the business.

Almost a weekend golfer these days, the freckle-faced Kerr, Times Open king in 1956, was smiling when he finished last Sunday's match with a 1-under-par tally for the 14 holes he needed to oust Merriman. It was, he said, the first time this season he felt he was hitting the ball well.

If Laurie has his swing grooved, it could be bad news for any rival. But it might be noted that Bigelow, despite double-boogies on the two water holes, was just one over par figures when he sidelined Donaldson on the 16th green, which makes it just about even.

Sentiment may be riding with Bigelow when they start belting Sunday morning, because he's known as a right guy on the fairways and, at 51, he can't have too many more chances to nail down that second Open crown. But sentiment doesn't count on the scorecards and the battle with Kerr promises to be a dandy.

And it might be mentioned that the betting around the bunker brigade is that if anybody has trouble negotiating 36 holes tomorrow, it's going to be George Bigelow's caddy.

Terriers Go Two Up With Typical Triumph

(From CP Reports)

At this stage of the Allan Cup final, it is no reflection on the visitors from the West to speculate whether anybody can beat Galt Terriers.

The Terriers, who thrive on overtime histrionics and are not deterred when they fall behind by a handful of goals, pulled another one out of the fire at Galt, Ont., Friday night in typical last-minute fashion.

OVERTIME WIN

The 4-3 victory over Winnipeg Maroons came in the second period of overtime on the 32nd lead in games in the best-of-seven series for the Canadian senior hockey title.

They carry into the third game Sunday at nearby Kitchener the impressive record of 13 straight winning playoff games, including two in overtime, 16 victories in a row and 30 wins in 35 games dating back to Dec. 28.

'Old' Ford Does Job To Keep Yanks Rolling

United Press International

It's a question today whether the New York Yankees' American League rivals should be more afraid of the "new" Mickey Mantle or the "old" Whitey Ford.

Both are red-hot and it's no coincidence that the Yankees have reeled off five straight victories and look every bit as menacing under Ralph Houk as they ever did under Casey Stengel.

The Yankees met a potential contender for the first time this season Friday night and made it look easy with a 4-2 win over Baltimore Orioles. Mantle supplied the "crash" with a two-run homer in the third inning and Ford supplied the finesse with a seven-hit, one-walk performance.

TWINS TRIPPED

Detroit Tigers retained their half-game grip on first place by beating Los Angeles Angels, 9-1; Washington Senators spoiled Minnesota Twins' home debut with a 5-3 victory; Chicago White Sox defeated Boston Red Sox, 3-2, and the Cleveland Indians topped Kansas City, 5-3, in other American League games.

Kennedy's Tax Plan Under Fire

By JACK LEFLER

NEW YORK (AP) — President Kennedy's tax program stirred up controversy in United States business and financial circles this week.

The president told Congress his aim was to modernize business and create 500,000 jobs. A lot of businessmen didn't see it that way.

Kennedy proposed, among other things, a special tax incentive for business to modernize and expand plants, withholding taxes on dividends and interest, and repeal of special tax treatment given dividends. Some businessmen expressed a preference for an increase in their depreciation allowance as a means of spurring the rate of plant expansion.

Kennedy contended that while the tax incentive plan would cut tax revenues by $1,700,000 a year, the higher depreciation allowance would cost $3,400,000.

He said his proposal would bring about a big increase in employment in such industries as construction, lumber, steel, cement and machinery.

OPPOSITION SEEN

The proposals on dividends and interest seemed sure to draw widespread opposition from the 15,000,000 U.S. stock-owners and others who draw interest on bonds, mortgages and savings.

The president wants to repeal the exclusion from income of the first $50 of dividends and the 4-per-cent tax credit on dividends. He said a proposed 20-per-cent tax would bring in $450,000,000 annually.

Keith Funston, president of the New York Stock Exchange, contended this would be double taxation on the full amount of dividend and interest income because corporations pay tax on the money they pay out in dividends.

Business was apprehensive about the deteriorating Cuban situation and its international implications. This anxiety was felt on the stock market and the long advance was interrupted.

OUTLOOK STILL BRIGHT

However, there was no dimming of the burgeoning optimism about the business outlook.

The steel industry, most important beacon in the economic seas, flashed what some saw as a go-ahead signal.

Production rose last week for the fifth straight week to a 10-month high of more than 60 per cent of capacity.

The trade publication, Iron Age, found "real buoyancy" in demand for steel for the first time since the upturn began.

Automobile production hit the highest level of the year with every one of the industry's 49 plants building cars.

Expert Urges Multiple Use Of Forests

VANCOUVER (CP) — A U.S. resources manager has attacked small special interest groups who want huge areas of forest land set aside for recreational use only.

B. L. Cole, commissioner of public lands for Washington state, said public lands should be managed on a multiple use basis in the interest of the majority of people.

He told the Canadian Forestry Association of B.C.: "This threat hasn't hit you yet, but it has hit us terribly hard."

Mr. Cole specifically attacked "emotional" well-financed groups who press for "wilderness" areas, or huge tracts of land to be set aside unmanaged and untouched.

"We know we can't afford to set aside these exceptionally large areas for single purpose usage," he said. "This is one of the real dangers we have in the immediate future if we are going to manage forest lands for the benefit of most of the people."

He urged the industry to look and plan ahead, or "I feel that most of the forest lands will be used only for recreational purposes."

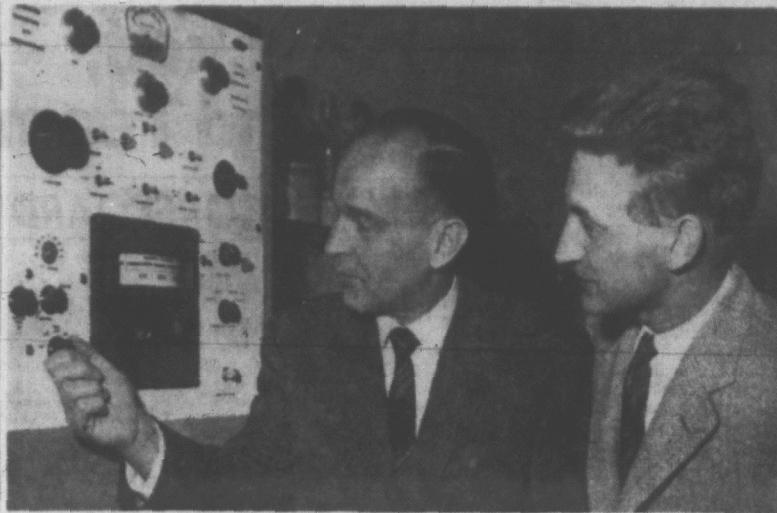

The forest industry should spend more funds for research and advertising.

$70 Million Office Building

MONTREAL (CP) — Plans are going ahead for a $70,000,000 office building complex that would house the stock exchanges and other businesses.

The Plaza, which would include a building of 39 stories, 52 above ground and seven below, Victoria Square, just off the western edge of Montreal's St. James Street financial district.

The project would have three buildings and would be named Place de la Bourse appointed chairman as well as president.

RESEARCH GRANTS totalling $5,000 have been awarded Victoria College chemistry professors Dr. S. A. Ryce (left) and Dr. A. D. Kirk. National Research Council renewed Dr. Ryce's $3,000 grant for purchase of materials and equipment for study of gas chromatography and behavior of liquids in electric fields. It gave $2,000 to Dr. Kirk to further his studies of methyl hydroperoxide and ketone photolysis. (Times Photo.)

BUSINESS VIEWS

Costs, Prices Will Hold This Year Declares Bank

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

Latest issue of the Bank of Nova Scotia's Monthly Review tends to discount, for Canada's sake, any great tendency to upward revision of costs and prices this year.

The review notes that Canadian price indexes have continued to register a modest upturn, most notably in the area of consumer services, but at the same time there has been a downward bias in the market for commodities—both basic materials and manufactured products.

There is some difficulty in measuring the actual trend of prices these days because of the increasing prevalence of special sale prices, unofficial discounts and the like.

With business activity expected to start moving higher again in the near future, certain upward pressures on costs and prices will undoubtedly be renewed, the Review says.

But in the absence of unforeseen emergencies, these pressures do not seem likely to reach anything more than modest proportions.

To bolster its opinion the Review points to abundant supplies and capacity in world commodity markets, less vigorous growth of demand for housing and consumer durables and increase in the labor force.

Unfortunately these factors have been operative for quite some months now and have failed to halt the inexorable advance of the price indices, although the upward trend has been slowed.

Also notable is the fact that these same factors have been at work in the U.S. economy, perhaps to a greater extent than in Canada, and yet a number of American economists and business analysts are forecasting price and cost advances over a wide range in the coming months.

Another trust company merger, between the Canada Permanent Trust Co. and Toronto General Trust Corp., is in the making.

Application for a private federal bill approving the move will be sought and then the matter put to stockholders of the two companies.

With business activity expected to start moving higher again in the near future, certain upward pressures on costs and prices will undoubtedly be renewed, the Review says.

WEEK ON MARKETS

Volume, Dollar Dip Amid Light Trading

By JOHN BELANGER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The stock market leveled off during the past five days of trading and showed a marked decrease in both volume and dollar value from last week's figures.

There was little activity in any field, and a noticeable slowdown kept industrial volume at a minimum for the week. There was, however, some activity in Canada Permanent Mortgage with the merger between Toronto General Trusts and Canada Permanent Mortgage, and the merger is subject to approval by both Parliament and the shareholders.

Utilities and steels end the week with their heads above water, but only slightly. Pipe lines were good throughout the week with Trans Mountain touching a new high and Trans-Canada turning over several large blocks of shares.

Business and world news affected the market. The Cuban invasion brought the New York Stock Exchange up short and Toronto followed its lead. Base metals showed strong gains amid heavy trading. Lorado Uranium continued the pace it set three weeks ago and remained the most active stock on the board. Among the seniors, Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting, International Nickel, Noranda, Sheraton, Bell Telephone, Balfour, Uranium, and others, all reached new highs.

Golds were inactive. In western oils, good volume was in evidence, particularly in Long Island Petroleum, and the merger is subject to approval by both Parliament and the shareholders.

OF ALL PLACES

How Hangovers Were Born

ATHENS — The nastiest Greek on the Acropolis, since Pericles turned in his toga, is John Stathopoulos, who wears a fancy fedora, carries a walking stick and writes in green ink. History never had a handsome handmademan.

John has been trodding the marble ruins of Greece for 50 years of so, having been a guide in his time to G. B. Shaw, Robert Ripley, and us. He is used to the ways of writers, including lazy ones. When I fail to take the proper notes, John raps his cane on the marble floor. "Write, pliss!" he orders.

John is bouncing through his seventies only slightly hampered by his cane and what he refers to as "caneetaseeyon teeth." But I pant heavily as I follow him up the hill trod in other ages by Socrates, Aristophanes, and Sophocles. The Acropolis has been a dwelling place since the days of the one-eyed Cyclopian kings. And why did the Cyclopians come to the Acropolis? Because it had two springs and water was guaranteed by fast-action photographers who work the hill.

The "inglis," as John likes to call it, isn't always the King's, but the narrative is gripping, if involved: "The god Bacchus or Dionysus to the god Mercury or Hermis who was the messenger of the Gods to carried the baby to the long distant home of the forest Nymphs and Satyrs. When the Nymphs ressived the baby they put his cradle near a grape-vine, when the baby lost the grapes and the wine made of the juice he became intoxicated." And that, class, is how hangovers were born. Write, pliss.

Anyone who spends a hot morning slaving over the ruins of the Acropolis deserves an afternoon by the sea. The lovely restaurants nestled by the shore from Phaleron clear to Sounian, a stretch which includes the resorts of Glyphada and Vouliagmeni, newly developed.

It's only been a year since the sand was combed at Vouliagmeni, and paddle tennis and basketball courts laid out. The last word is the brand new Oceanid Restaurant, a gleaming temple for tourists just around the hill from the Temple of Poseidon.

The scrubby earth will grow very little aside from hotels, but these are bursting out of the Athenian shoreline at a frenzied rate. The experiment of the glorified motel at Astir Beach in Glyphada has proved a great success, and the 100 sunlounges are at a premium in high season. Each has two beds, a covered veranda, bath and telephone, and the sea washes a few feet away.

Phun in the sun is the Greek message there along the Gulf of Saronikos. Even the walls of the Astir's bungalows open up for California living. June to September prices start at $17 a day for two with half board.

Greece is one of the last refuges of sane prices. Even in midtown Athens the splendid Grand Breague only asks about $8 a day for a large double room with bath. Dinner is modest enough at the best of restaurants.

At Costi's, a favorite of ours, the squeamish can order chicken soup and a ham omelette, but pioneers may try stuffed wine leaves, stuffed lamb's intestines and stuffed artichokes, a course that leads inevitably to stuffed tourist.

For the late evening there are the tavernas and the bouzoukia joints, but these days sophisticated Athens goes to Tjaki to hear a singer called Nana, who is the rage of the Aegean. She wears glasses and black dresses and looks like a stenographer dressed up like Piaf.

Virtually all her tearful songs are by Manos Haedjidakis, who composed the music for "Never on Sunday." Nana is the only sad note in Athens, except for that inhos-pital airport custom of extracting a dollar from each tourist who leaves the country by air. It's time travellers rose like an irate body against a tax for the privilege of departing. I invite anyone of like mind to write, pliss!

DRIVING IS SOMETHING these six Victorians will want to do without May 6 by the time they finish the 4,100-mile Cross-Canada Rally in Vancouver. The team of three Jaguar 3.8-litre saloons is entered by the British Sports Touring Club and, with 103 other cars from North America and Europe, will start from Montreal April 30. Beside one of cars before leaving Friday are, from left, Geoffrey Reynolds, Dr. Michael Penn, James Wells, Graham Moffatt, Frank Berry and John Roome.

MONTE ROBERTS

I see where the Victoria branch of the SPCA has a good thing going.

This good thing is an essay contest, open to one- and all of 18 years of age and up, with a cash prize of $25.

The topic of this essay contest is "Man's Duty to Animals."

And I would dearly love to enter.

Unfortunately, I have never had the opportunity to study what man's duty to animals is.

This is because the animals with whom I have been associated all made my duties abundantly clear, so I haven't had time to study about man's duty to animals.

I do not mean the animals with whom I have been associated have neglected my basic training, namely, to provide for them food, shelter and companionship.

Any associate of animals knows he is expected to provide food, shelter, companionship and (in the case of a Mexican Hairless) clothing.

But the animals in my life have laid down other duties for me which would never be accepted in an essay contest, even one sponsored by the SPCA.

Item: There was a one-legged sparrow, early in my life (naturally, he was called Short John Silver).

This one-legged sparrow attracted my attention because he was forever falling off the tray of birdseed in the back garden, so I set up a separate tray for his own use.

This worked fine, until the other birds decided Short John's tray was a better tray, and went to it.

So Short John ordained this duty for me: I had to stand by his tray, and fend off the other birds until his sufficiency was suspended.

In a way, this wasn't a bad tour of duty, as it got me out of a lot of homework.

Item: The dog named Skipper, who, in the wilds of Northern Ontario, decided it was my duty to catch him a chipmunk, because the chipmunks kept on throwing acorns at him. (I never succeeded in carrying out this duty, and Skipper never forgave me.)

Item: The brown squirrel who never told me his name, but came around to the window of my Winnipeg apartment, informing me my duty was to put acorns in a shiny tin—not just spread out on the windowsill. (He preferred the large economy pack.)

Item: The large white rabbit who lived in my house in Toronto, who informed me my duty was to provide him with a regular nightcap of rum in milk.

His name was Hopalong Cassidy, and he insisted on Demerrara rum. Offer him anything else, and his hind legs beat a tattoo calculated to start the air raid sirens screaming.

There are other items, but you can see why I can't write an essay on Man's Duty to Animals.

The animals with whom I've associated have made my duties all too clear.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

The week's events in Cuba had a local reaction today when a group of 25 people paraded along Douglas Street sidewalks bearing placards "Hands Off Cuba" and "No More Cuban Intervention."

E. D. Hill, executive secretary, social planning division, Vancouver Community Chest and Councils, will be guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Community Welfare Council of Greater Victoria at Spencerhouse, 1951 Cook Wednesday at 8 p.m.

Mr. Hill will discuss "The future of voluntary agencies."

An unidentified man, his wife and daughter escaped injury when their car dropped over a bank near Malahat summit at about 11 a.m. today.

The RCMP said a tow truck was needed to put the auto back on the highway and marvelled that there were no injuries.

Gunter Vieweg, 1000 Tilli- cum, was fined $250 when he pleaded guilty in city police court today to impaired driving on Gorge Road early today.

He was remanded a week for probation report on the matter of licence suspension.

Police said his car was in collision with a parked car at 12:30 a.m. on Gorge near David when the auto swerved to left side of the road.

ESQUIMALT FIGHTS TO HOLD TAX LINE

Esquimalt's budget this year isn't likely to bring taxpayers much relief.

"It's pretty tight," Reeve A. C. Wurtele said today. "Costs of things are going up all the time. It will be difficult to hold the line."

"Other municipalities are trying to hold the line but I cannot guarantee that," said the reeve.

Council will go into committee to discuss the budget after its regular meeting in Esquimalt Municipal Hall, Monday at 7:30 p.m.

Next meeting of Victoria and District Archaeology Club will be held in the cafeteria of the Douglas Building, Government at Elliott, Friday evening at 8.

The meeting will feature an illustrated talk by David Sanger, of University of British Columbia, on "Excavations at a prehistoric Indian burial mound near Chase, B.C."

MONDAY MEETINGS

Victoria Gyro Club: Noon, Empress Hotel, Business meeting.

Douglas Rotary Club: 6 p.m., Holyrood House, Ronald Hewlett, "Sun Dance of the Plains Indians." (Times Photo.)

Victoria branch, British Israel World Federation, will hold a prayer service in the small hall at the YMCA Monday at 3 p.m. A. Gorse will talk on "Conditions for Prayer."

A Saanich woman was put on $500 bond for a year's good behavior when sentence for obtaining goods by false pretences was suspended in Central Saanich police court Thursday.

Ang Callander was charged with using a worthless cheque for $65.02 to pay a farmer for feed.

Wide School Reforms Urged by Dean Scarfe

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dean Neville Scarfe of the University of British Columbia, in a criticism of the Chant commission report on education, Thursday offered a four-point plan to improve education in the province.

The points:

Teachers should be better trained.

Schools need more equipment, better materials and better libraries.

Classes should be reduced in size.

CHRISTIANS, JEWS ELECT DOUKHOBOR

CALGARY (CP) — John J. Verigin, official spokesman for Canada's 20,000 orthodox Doukhobors, has been elected one of seven directors to the western division board of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews.

The Grand Forks leader will serve on the board with Cecil C. Ramsden, publisher of the Nelson Daily News, Alex G. Bailey, vice-chairman of Bailey Selburn Oil and Gas Limited, Charles Hay, chairman and president of Royalite Oil Company, Sam S. Lieberman, Edmonton lawyer, John I. Rawlinson, chief accountant of Triad Oil Company, and Dr. Malcolm Taylor, principal of the Calgary branch of the University of Alberta.

Hon. J. Percy Page, lieutenant-governor of Alberta, was named honorary chairman of the western division, and Rabbi S. Morris Susman of Lethbridge was made Jewish member of the clergy advisory board.

The new elevator to St. Peter's Cupola in Vatican City holds 20 passengers, six more than the 50-year-old lift it replaced.

Rev. Philip Hewett, minister of Vancouver Unitarian Church, will conduct the service this Sunday for the Unitarian Fellowship of Victoria. His subject will be "Men as Samples Moving." Meeting is in Mount Tolmie Social Club Hall, Richmond at Cedar Hill Cross Road at 8 p.m.

Rev. A. I. Higgins will preach on "Sinners Anonymous" at the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services of worship at First United Church, corner of Quadra and Balmoral.

The choir will sing "All in the April Evening" and "Holy, Holy, Holy."

At the 7:30 p.m. service, Rev. Stanley Sears will give the second in his series on "Power-Full Christians."

"All Hail the Power of Jesus Name" and "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" will be sung by the choir.

Guest preacher at Oak Bay United Church Sunday morning and evening will be Rev. T. M. Badger, minister of Shaughnessy Heights United Church, Vancouver.

Mr. Badger will speak at the two morning services on "Thine is the Kingdom, the Power and the Glory." There will be an evening meeting at 7 at which Mr. Badger's subject will be "Putting Up With the Church."

Oak Bay United Church is now celebrating its 35th anniversary dating from 1926 when Hampshire Road Methodist joined with St. Columba Presbyterian to form the present church.

Presbyterian work was started in Oak Bay in 1892 and Methodist work in 1913.

The century-old pipe organ at Christ Church Cathedral will be dedicated by Dean Brian Whitlow at the 11 a.m. Sunday service.

The cathedral choir, accompanied by the old organ, will sing Mozart's Gloria from the West Gallery and Dean Whitlow will give the sermon.

At Evensong at 7:30 p.m. the preacher will be Rev. Canon J. E. W. Wickens. Evensong will be sung at James Bay Hall at 7 p.m. when the preacher will be Dean Whitlow.

Rev. Emma M. Smiley will conduct both Sunday services at Victoria Truth Centre. In the morning she will speak on "Prepare Ye the Way" and in the evening "Adam, Where Are Thou?"

Canon George Biddle will preach at the 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. services at St. John's Anglican. His evening sermon will be "In Christ—No Death."

The 11 a.m. service will be broadcast over CKDA. Holy Communion is at 8 a.m., the family service and school at 9:30 a.m. Other Sunday schools are at 11 a.m.

Returning from vacation, Rev. G. R. Easter will preach at the Sunday morning and evening services at First Baptist Church.

Miss Shona Foxall previews the gown she will wear at the Military Ball in Vancouver on May 5 when she makes her bow to society with 23 other attractive debutantes. The gown is of heavy white brocade. Focal point of interest is a panel in the back with additional fullness to accentuate continuity of flowing lines.

Only Island Debutante

Flurry of engagements started today for 24 debutantes who will be presented to His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes at the Military Ball in Hotel Vancouver on May 5.

Only Vancouver Island girl in the group is Miss Shona Foxall, daughter of Lt.-Cmdr. Leslie Lewendon Foxall and Mrs. Foxall of Koksilah.

This morning Mrs. Colin McQuarrie and Mrs. Owen Armitage of New Westminster had a coffee party for the girls, and this afternoon Mrs. Kenneth Molyneux was hostess at a tea in their honor.

Next Friday a tea will be given for the deb's, their parents and escorts at headquar-

Friends Say Prince Philip Likes Queen To Be Called 'Glamor Girl'

LONDON (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth II seems to be getting a "glamor girl" tag lately, which is a nice present for a woman who celebrated her 35th birthday Friday.

The Queen's smart appearance and especially her dazzling, form-fitting evening wear, have had the boys down at the pub giving her newspaper pictures the double-take.

Some wondered whether there was a deliberate royal glamorizing campaign.

"Not at all," insist friends of the Queen. Times have changed—not the Queen, say those with pipelines into the palace. And she loves to keep up with fashion like any style-conscious woman.

"The Queen cannot be a frump," one woman friend said.

One man with occasional access to the palace put it this way:

"Firstly, the Queen happens to be an attractive woman, one of those people who seem to improve with the years.

"Secondly, present-day fashions obviously become her."

The Queen, he said, must keep up with the styles. To do otherwise would be "unsuitable." But she cannot become too modern, either—that would be "out of key with her position."

This glamor business, the man said, isn't really a new thing. He referred to a recent press photograph that showed the Queen in a figure-hugging, toe-length sequined evening

Colorful Annual Firemen's Ball

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes were among the many guests that filled the ballroom of the Empress Hotel to capacity at the 100th annual Firemen's Ball Friday evening. Colorful decorations set the theme of "the old and the new." Suspended from the ceiling of the stage were two large models depicting a modern fire truck and a horse-drawn fire engine. As a backdrop, paintings were hung of the original firehall and present building.

Drums and trumpeters from the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry Regiment led the grand march. Guests danced to the music of Charlie Hunt's orchestra and supper was served in the hotel's dining room.

Annual Dance

Spring flowers and antique apothecary jars will decorate Holyrood House for the third annual spring dance of the Ladies' Pharmaceutical Auxiliary this evening. Guests will dance to the music of Jack Dick's orchestra.

Weds Today

A decorated umbrella held gifts at a shower given for Miss Irene Foot whose marriage to Const. Clifford Harisson takes place in St. Andrew's Cathedral this evening. Mrs. F. Bossom and Mrs. G. Smith were co-hostesses at the former's Shelbourne Street home. Guest of honor was presented with pink roses in corsage and her mother, Mrs. C. Foot, received a corsage of yellow roses. Also attending were Mrs. N. Harlan, Mrs. A. Willey, Mrs. E. Ash, Mrs. D. Kirby, Mrs. H. Harvey, Mrs. V. Holding, Mrs. E. Allan, Mrs. C.

Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hewitt, 338 Quadra Street, will celebrate their 30th wedding anniversary on Saturday, April 29, when they will be at home to friends from 2 to 5 p.m. and again from 7 to 10 p.m. They were married on Saturday, April 29, 1911, in St. Ann's Church, Nottingham, England. They have a son, Mr. A. H. Hewitt, living in Victoria and a daughter, Mrs. J. A. Parker, who is coming from Chase, B.C., for the anniversary. There are also two grandchildren.

Jubilee Graduates

Members of the graduating class of Royal Jubilee Hospital will be honored next Thursday afternoon at a tea arranged by the Junior Auxiliary in the nurses' residence. During the afternoon each girl will be presented with cuff links to mark the graduation. Next Friday evening the board of directors of the hospital will be hosts at a graduation dance in the residence and on Sunday morning, April 30, a baccalaureate service will be held for the graduates in Christ Church Cathedral. That evening graduation ceremony has been arranged in the Royal Theatre.

Wedding in May

Mr. and Mrs. George Mead-Robins of James Island announce the engagement of their only daughter, Gillian Moira, to James Raymond Coxon, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Coxon of Edmonton, Alta. The wedding will take place on Saturday, May 20, at 2 p.m., in Metropolitan United Church.

Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Caldwell of Alberni, B.C., announce the engagement of their only daughter, Eileen Marie, to Mr. Robert McKee, only son of Dr. and Mrs. W. B. McKee of South Burnaby. The bride-elect is the granddaughter of Mrs. G. W. Wirtanen, Victoria, and the late Mr. Wirtanen, and of Mrs. William Chatton, Vancouver, and the late Mr. A. B. Caldwell. The wedding will take place in Metropolitan United Church, Victoria, on May 20 at 3 p.m.

Victoria Daily Times SAT., APRIL 22, 1961 21

Mrs. S. W. Sibbald, left, was honor guest at a luncheon in the Empress Hotel on Friday. Hostess for her sister, who is visiting her from Toronto was Mrs. R. J. S. Tracy, centre. Assisting in receiving with her mother and her aunt was Miss Marilyn Tracy, at right, a student at University of British Columbia. There were 30 luncheon guests.

THE 'SILENT' PROFESSION

MELBOURNE (CP)—Montreal nurse Alice Girard Friday told 2,000 nurses from 24 countries that their profession has been "too silent" about its achievements.

The immediate past-president of the Canadian Nurses' Association gave the keynote address at Friday's opening of the 12th quadrennial congress, International Council of Nurses.

Miss Girard is director of nursing services and education, and assistant administrator, St. Luke's Hospital, Montreal.

She said that until recently nurses have been reluctant to share their problems with other professional groups.

"By this aloofness the nursing profession can deprive itself of the vital interest and support of the people it serves."

Some 70 Canadian nurses are attending the six-day international congress, meeting for the first time in the Pacific area.

Fort Rodd Hill Status Queried

Immediate clarification of the status of Fort Rodd Hill will be requested from Northern Affairs Minister Walter Dinsdale by the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, it was decided at a meeting of the group's board of directors Friday in the Empress Hotel.

The chamber will also ask that immediate action be taken to have the fort placed in the jurisdiction of the National Historic Sites and Monuments Board.

Saanich Reeve George Chatton said the chamber should also ask that all four Greater Victoria municipalities be asked to support the move by letters to Mr. Dinsdale.

FACTS WELL KNOWN

Chamber president M. Aubrey Kent told the meeting he did not believe the status of the fort was in such doubt as was stated in a newspaper story Friday morning.

The directors' meeting also decided to request the city to institute earlier and more frequent cleaning of the Inner Harbour.

Capt. George Veres, chairman of the harbour and transportation group, said the condition of the harbour 10 months of the year is a "disgrace."

He urged a clean-up before the Swiftsure race this year. It was decided to ask the city to consider charging a wharfage fee for visiting boats using the city's facilities at the causeway to defray some of the cost of harbor cleaning.

The board also approved a suggestion from Walter Dodsworth, chairman of the tourist industry group, to work in cooperation with the city's centennial committee in the inauguration of an annual Swiftsure Race Week which would be started next year as part of the centennial celebration.

The meeting appointed Conway Parrott and W. C. Mearns to the board of directors of the B.C. Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Kent was chosen as voting delegate to the provincial body.

Howard McKay was named chairman of the election committee.

Pensioner Slain For $8

VANCOUVER (CP) — An 80-year-old pensioner was fatally beaten by a man who escaped with $8.

Julius Levy, who owed three months rent for his hotel room, died Friday in hospital seven hours after he was beaten.

He suddenly collapsed in a police car in which he was riding during a search for his assailant.

Police said Levy stopped to rest at the shop of his friend, tailor J. H. Sweder, when a man came to the door and asked for a pair of trousers.

They said Levy told them later that the man appeared drunk and he tried to humor him. The man suddenly struck Levy several times with a cane, wrestled him to the floor and fled with $8.

Sweder said that Levy attempted to augment his income by peddling cutlery to butchers and bakers.

"I gave him the privilege of my shop to rest and receive his mail. I gave him a key to let himself in whenever he wanted."

The attack took place at 7 p.m. Thursday.

To Contest All Seats

RENFREW, Ont. (CP) — A CCF member of Parliament from British Columbia said today the New Party will contest all 265 federal constituencies in the next general election. "We will either form the next government or, as a minimum, we will hold the balance of power." Ewart Regier told a New Party forum here.

LAOS REBELS LAUNCH DRIVE

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — Communist supplied rebel forces, backed by a heavy mortar barrage, attacked Laotian government troops on a key highway north of Vang Vieng today. The government commander said 18 soldiers were killed and 16 wounded.

Nikita Blasts JFK Over Cuba

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Nikita Khrushchev, in a message to President Kennedy today, repeated accusations that the anti-Castro invasion was financed and organized in the United States and said action taken against Cuba was "gangsterism pure and simple."

The Soviet premier warned Kennedy "you are adopting a very dangerous path" but added that Russia still wanted peaceful relations with the U.S.

Khrushchev's message was handed over by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, to U.S. Charge d'Affaires Edward Freers. It was also published in the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia, with the full text of Kennedy's message on Cuba to Khrushchev sent earlier this week.

Khrushchev, saying that American bombers supported the landings in Cuba, said:

"The armed forces of the United States took an active part in the invasion."

Choosing a Dangerous Way

Against Kennedy's references to Budapest he set U.S. actions in Guatemala and added: "You, Mr. President, are choosing a very dangerous way."

At the end of his message, Khrushchev said the Soviet Union wanted to build relations with the United States so that the two countries "do not rattle sabres and do not flaunt military and economic superiority" because these actions will lead not to the bettering of the international situation but to its sharpening.

Russia desired an agreement with the United States and other countries on disarmament and other questions. "The solution of which would secure peaceful coexistence and the acknowledgement of such social and political systems for all the people that they would establish themselves."

Khrushchev said there was "no basis whatsoever" in President Kennedy's assertion that Cuban territory

'REMOTE CHANCE OF SUCCESS'

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI News Analyst

The revolt of the French generals in Algiers is an act of desperation with only the remotest chance of success.

For it is a rebellion not only against Gen. Charles de Gaulle's plan for an independent Algeria, it is also a revolt against de Gaulle himself and to succeed it must topple de Gaulle.

But for de Gaulle, it also is a powerful reminder that the success of his plan for Algeria depends upon the army.

The indications are today that the bulk of the French armed forces remain loyal to him.

LAOS CRISIS

'Conditions Exist For Peace'

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union and Laotian neutralist leader Prince Souvanna Phoumoune said in a joint communiqué today that "real conditions exist" at present for a peaceful settlement of the Laotian conflict.

The communiqué was issued here as Souvanna flew to Communist China following a Russian visit that included talks with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev. Souvanna was accompanied by his half-brother, Prince Souphanouvong, leader of the leftist Pathet Lao forces in Laos.

The joint communiqué blamed the United States and its SEATO allies for the "present serious situation" in Laos.

It said, however, that both Prince Souvanna and the Soviet government "are of the opinion that at present real conditions exist to normalize the situation in Laos, in accord with the national interest of the Laotian people and the interests of peace."

WIRE BRIEFS

Truce City Battle

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UPI) — A free-swinging brawl between American and Communist security guards in this truce village was swiftly broken up by security officers on both sides today.

Former star of opera, concert stage, movies and TV, James Melton, 57, died Friday night in a New York hospital of lobar pneumonia. He had been sick only a few days.

Khrushchev said today: "We have no bases in Cuba and have no intention of establishing them." He said this was well known to Kennedy and "your generals and admirals."

"You speak about your rights and obligations. Of course, everybody may lay claim to this or that right, but then you must admit that other states must base their actions on analogical conclusions and considerations."

MONTE ROBERTS

I see where the Victoria branch of the SPCA has a good thing going.

This good thing is an essay contest, open to one and all of 18 years of age and up, with a cash prize of $25. The topic of this essay contest is "Man's Duty to Animals."

And I would dearly love to enter.

Unfortunately, I have never had the opportunity to study what man's duty to animals is.

This is because the animals with whom I have been associated all made my duties abundantly clear, so I haven't had time to study about man's duty to animals.

I do not mean the animals with whom I have been associated have neglected my basic training, namely, to provide for them food, shelter and companionship.

Any associate of animals knows he is expected to provide food, shelter, companionship and (in the case of a Mexican Hairless) clothing.

But the animals in my life have laid down other duties for me which would never be accepted in an essay contest, even one sponsored by the SPCA.

Item: There was a one-legged sparrow, early in my life (naturally, he was called Short John Silver).

This one-legged sparrow attracted my attention because he was forever falling off the tray of birdseed in the back garden, so I set up a separate tray for his own use. This worked fine, until the other birds decided Short John's tray was a better tray, and went to it.

So Short John ordained this duty for me: I had to stand by his tray, and fend off the other birds until his sufficiency was suspended.

(In a way, this wasn't a bad tour of duty, as it got me out of a lot of homework.)

Item: The dog named Skipper, who, in the wilds of Northern Ontario, decided it was my duty to catch him a chipmunk, because the chipmunks kept on throwing stones at him. (I never succeeded in carrying out this duty, and Skipper never forgave me.)

Item: The brown squirrel who never told me his name, but came around to the window of my Winnipeg apartment, informing me my duty was to put acorns in a shiny tin—not just spread out on the windowsill. (He preferred the large economy pack.)

Item: The large white rabbit who lived in my house in Toronto, who informed me my duty was to provide him with a regular nightcap of rum in milk.

His name was Hopalong Cassidy, and he insisted on Demerara rum. Offer him anything else, and his hind legs beat a tattoo calculated to start the air raid sirens screaming.

There are other items, but you can see why I can't write an essay on Man's Duty to Animals.

The animals with whom I've associated have made my duties all too clear.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

The week's events in Cuba had a local reaction today when a group of 25 people paraded along Douglas Street sidewalks bearing placards "Hands Off Cuba" and "No More Cuba Intervention."

E. D. Hill, executive secretary, social planning division, Vancouver Community Chest and Councils, will be guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Community Welfare Council of Greater Victoria at Spencerhouse, 1951 Cook Wednesday at 8 p.m.

Mr. Hill will discuss "The future of voluntary agencies."

ESQUIMALT FIGHTS TO HOLD TAX LINE

An unidentified man, his wife and daughter escaped injury when their car dropped over a bank near Malahat summit at about 11 a.m. today.

The RCMP said a tow truck was needed to put the auto back on the highway and marvelled that there were no injuries.

Gunther Vieweg, 1000 Tilli-cum, was fined $250 when he pleaded guilty in city police court today to impaired driving on Gorge Road early today. He was remanded a week for a report on the matter of licence suspension.

Police said his car was in collision with a parked car at 12:30 a.m. on Gorge near David when the auto swerved to left side of the road.

The meeting will feature an illustrated talk by David Sangher, of University of British Columbia, on "Excavations at a prehistoric Indian burial mound near Chase, B.C."

Next meeting of Victoria and District Archaeology Club will be held in the cafeteria of the Douglas Building, Government at Elliott, Friday evening at 8 p.m.

The meeting will feature an illustrated talk by David Sangher, of University of British Columbia, on "Excavations at a prehistoric Indian burial mound near Chase, B.C."

Banff As Site For Olympics Jars Westwood

Final Decision Possible Today

Bitter disappointment on learning Banff will be favored over B.C. sites as Canada's offer for the 1968 Winter Olympics was expressed today by Recreation and Conservation Minister Earle Westwood.

According to Canadian Press Foundation Company of Canada, an engineering firm, surveyed all possible Canadian sites and concluded Banff had the best chance of receiving International Olympic Committee recognition.

The firm's report was read at the annual meeting of the Canadian Olympic Association today in Toronto. A decision was expected this afternoon.

WANTS REASONS

"I certainly think the engineering firm should expand its report and give its reasons why it favored Banff over the B.C. sites," Mr. Westwood said today from his home in Nanaimo.

"It's most disappointing news, particularly in view of the effort made by the people who favored the B.C. areas. They were Garibaldi Park and Manning Park, near the coast, and sites at Fernie, Rossland and Revelstoke."

"People there went to great efforts preparing excellent briefs, maps, and plans in support of their choices."

FAVORED GARIBALDI

Ald. Austin I. Curtis said today he expects city council will accept a conciliation award granting 158 inside civic workers a half-hour shorter day for the five summer months beginning May 1.

"I don't think we have any alternative," said Ald. Curtis, who is acting chairman of the city finance committee during the absence of Ald. Arthur Dowell.

The city council will discuss the matter at its meeting next Thursday.

The award for a half-hour shorter day was made recently by a single conciliation officer, acting under a section of the B.C. Labor Relations Act.

WORKERS ACCEPTED

Victoria City Hall Employees' Association accepted the award, but the city council rejected it last week.

Max Pierotti, Vancouver spokesman for the civic inside workers, said if the council did not accept the award members of the association would file claims for one-half hour overtime each working day they were required to stay at work until 5 p.m.

"If these claims were refused, we would have to ask the department of labor for permission to sue," Mr. Pierotti said.

"Failing that, we would take steps to conduct a strike vote."

Official estimates placed cost of the overtime at $220 a day or about $22,000 during the summer months.

ASK The TIMES

Q. Since when has the Anglican Church morning service, viz. Matins, been split with two T's?

The dictionary uses only one Latin for "pertaining to the morning."

TWO PROVINCES BEHIND HIM

Trekker in Good Shape

Victoria Jaycee Blaize Tringham is reported to be in fine health and making good time on his lonely 4,000-mile trek across Canada.

He was scheduled to walk out of Aroostook, N.B., this morning, and cross into Quebec early next week, putting two provinces behind him.

The lone hiker covered 80 miles in the last three days, giving him an average of just under 27 miles daily.

Griff Layne, chairman of the organizing Jaycee committee, said the last report he had from Blaize is that the weather is clearing slowly. He now is having to face only three inches of snow compared to 12 or 14 inches in the early stages of the walk.

drop out because of leg trouble, is in Edmundston, N.B. While there he is earning some money to help finance the project by taking over a service station for a fellow Jaycee who has gone on a holiday. Blaize is due in Edmundston shortly.

He is in excellent physical condition and in high spirits but without his companion the loneliness and monotony of the walk are becoming more noticeable to him, Mr. Layne said.

The two youths left Victoria on the start of their Jaycee-backed project in the middle of March and left Halifax about a month ago.

Idea of the walk is to attract tourists here and on his pack, Blaize is carrying a sign "Follow the Birds to Victoria."

"The publicity the boys have stirred up in the Maritimes is tremendous," said Mr. Layne.
